NOTABLE SPEECHES MARK THE FOURTH

Dr. Dabney Tells of Progress of the South Through Education.

CAROLINIAN IN PHILADELPHIA

James S. Hooper Spoke on William Hooper, One of the Signers of Declaration of Independence —Dabney's Address

Knoxville, Tenn., July 4.—In a notable Independence Day address on "The South Re-nationalized by Education," at the Summer school of the South here, Dr. Chas. W. Dabney, now president of the University of Cincinnati, but formerly president of the University of Tennessee, said in part:

"After fifty years of separation from the nation these Southern States have become re-nationalized and taken their places at the council table of the government. That this actually has come to pass is made evident by a House of Representatives again controlled by Southern men, by the recent presence of Tennesseeans in the cabinet and by the appointment of a chief justice, who was a Confederate soldier. Once before in 1893-97, we came near taking charge of the government and failed because, as I sincerely believe, our people were not sufficiently educated and our leaders not sufficiently unselfish to deserve the task.

"Referring to the attacks of Southern Democrats upon him, Mr. Cleveland said to me in 1896: 'I believe the Southern people are loyal and generous, yet their leaders traduce me though I was the first to invite them back to their father's table.' Breaking with him the South threw away a great opportunity to regain her position in the nation.

"The South has passed from the discussion of States' rights and constitutional powers to the consideration of State needs and State's duties. Education and sanitation are now the chief subjects of consideration in our Legislatures and the color line and 'bloody shirt' are forgotten."

Dr. Dabney, then reviewed the present education in the South and paid tribute to her educational leaders, to Robert E. Lee, not the commander-in-chief, but the college professor; not Curry, the secession orator and congressman, but Curry, the champion of the child; and McIver, teacher, pure and simple.

"These," he said, "I claim are immortals, for they founded institutions for the good of mankind throughout the ages. Their doctrine that the commonwealth should be devoted first of all to the training of the child, has been a lesson of these 50 years past.

"Much has been accomplished. Tennessee and Virginia have led the way in enacting model school laws and systems of taxation. Great advance has been made in providing both State and county support for the schools with the result that 1911 expenditures for education are more than three times as much as they were ten years ago; the value of school property is three and a half times as much; money expended on normal schools and other means of professional education is more than three times as much, and the appropriations for State universities and other State institutions of higher learning is twice as much. High school facilities have more than doubled in which the average school has increased from 90 to 150 days; salaries of teachers have increased and many more agricultural schools have been established."

Referring to the recent appointment by President Taft of Dr. Philander P. Claxton, head of the South's Summer School, as United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. Dabney brought his address to a close, saying:

"Thus after half a century of complete or partial separation, the South has, through public education, re-nationalized herself and prepared her people to undertake again their share of the nation's work. The giving by the South of its great educational leader to the nation is the latest recognition of its complete re-nationalization."

Jas. S. Hooper One of Speakers.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 4.—The 135th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence was appropriately observed in this city, the exercises being under the auspices of the Society of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. The exercises were held at Independence Hall and participated in by the mayor of Philadelphia, members of the city council and city officials, as well as the society.

Addresses were made by Mayor Moses Veale, ex-president general of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution; Anthony M. Hance, Esq., of First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, and others, among the number being an address by Mr. Jas. S. Hooper, of Statesville, North Carolina, on William Hooper, his ancestor and one of the signers on behalf of North Carolina.

Mr. Hooper said:

"Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Descendants of the Signers: I feel honored by the request of the president of this society to say something on this occasion about my ancestor, William Hooper, one of the

ATWOOD BATTLED WITH WINDS

Aviator Thrills Holiday Visitors at Atlantic City—Progress on New York to Boston Trip—Fought High Winds.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 4.—A thrill was given thousands of holiday visitors here this afternoon when Atwood, the aviator, after fighting heavy winds throughout his flight from New York, terminated the third leg of his proposed journey from Boston to Washington by landing his biplane on the beach front.

During the flight Atwood made three landings for gasoline. Once near Asbury Park, the second at Tuckerton, N. J., and the third at Venice Park, near this city. Mr. Atwood said that, judging from the amount of gasoline he had used, he must have traveled at least 250 miles. He was in the air more than five hours. The distance along the coast is about 115 miles.

"I feel too tired to attempt the trip to Washington tonight," the bird-man said. "My route and time of starting will depend entirely on the conditions tomorrow. I hope to start before 10 o'clock in the morning."

"The only trouble I had during the trip," Mr. Atwood said, "was with my gasoline supply. After I left Governor's Island I headed along the coast. A warning whirr of protest from my engines as I neared Asbury Park told me the gasoline was low. At that time I was flying about 1,000 feet in the air. After circling around the resort, I landed. Here I took on five gallons of gasoline.

"When I mounted the atmosphere again I tried a higher altitude in the hope of finding quiet air currents. The wind was stronger, if anything, higher up, so I took a traveling altitude of about 1,500 feet. As I passed over the shore towns I always dipped to a 500-foot level. I reached Barnegat and turned in for a more direct route to Atlantic City.

"I experienced little trouble until I neared Tuckerton. Here the gasoline went dry again. I finally descended in a little clearing. I borrowed five gallons of gasoline from an owner of an automobile and made a good getaway.

"It was during the fly from Tuckerton across to the outskirts of this city that I had my hardest fight to keep in the air. The velocity of the wind here was the strongest of the trip. It took until 2 o'clock to make that last 17 miles, but I must have made at least 50 air miles.

"The wind grew more treacherous as I swung up to Venice Park, on the outskirts of Atlantic City. I encountered air bumps and air holes that made the going rather difficult. To make matters worse, my gasoline ran out again. I came down and narrowly missed disaster when a puff of wind caught the plane about a hundred feet from the ground. I was almost thrown from my seat as the wind got under the wings, and again when I struck the ground. That was my narrowest escape. I expected to go head over heels, but managed to hold on until the machine stopped.

"I felt the shock, but found my machine undamaged and continued after taking on five gallons more of gasoline. When I circled out over the ocean I found the currents the most stable of my flight, and made a successful landing in Atlantic City."

Atwood left Governor's Island in New York bay at 8:49 A. M., and landed at Park Place, Atlantic City, at 2:30 P. M.

Atwood's appearance here created a sensation, as it was not generally known that he would attempt his flight to the National capital, or that this resort would be on his route. The board walk was crowded with a holiday throng when he hove in sight and when he alighted he was cheered by thousands of people. His landing place was close to the board walk, between the Marlborough-Blenheim and Brighton Hotels. His landing was perfect and his machine was in fine condition when he finished the flight. Atwood was almost mobbed by the crowd that surrounded him.

Washington Awaits Atwood.

Washington, July 4.—Assured that Harry N. Atwood, the daring young Boston aviator, who started from New York for Washington today, would certainly arrive tomorrow, the capital prepared tonight to receive him when he alighted from the skies. Granville M. Hunt, of the local Chamber of Commerce, returned tonight from Atlantic City, where the aviator landed in his flight today.

"Unless the weather is such that Mr. Atwood cannot attempt a flight," said Mr. Hunt, "I have completed assurances that the last leg of the journey between New York and Washington will be undertaken tomorrow."

The chances are that Atwood will start about noon, when there generally is a lull in Summer winds. In such a case, he should arrive here about 2:30 or 3 o'clock, according to local aviators, who are looking forward to the accomplishment of his feat with unconcealed interest.

The plans tonight are to have the aerial visitor alight in the ellipse immediately back of the White House. Atwood is to use the Washington monument as a guiding mark and several thousand square feet of dazzling white canvas will be spread on the lawn near the tall shaft to mark the place for his descent.

The ellipse will be thoroughly policed and everything will be done to protect the great crowd of onlookers expected to gather to see the end of the flight.

Preparations are completed to give Atwood a hearty reception.

H. C. BROWN DIES AT CAPITAL CITY

Prominent Member of Carolina Corporation Commission Several Years.

PASSES AFTER ACUTE ILLNESS

Highly Esteemed Throughout State—Cancer of Stomach Direct Cause of Demise—Succeeded the Late B. F. Aycock.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 4.—Hon. Henry Clay Brown, member of the North Carolina Corporation Commission, died this morning at 6:30 o'clock after an illness that has steadily grown worse since May 20th when he was last at his desk in the offices of the commission. His death has been expected at any time for the past three days. He died of cancer of the stomach and many think that a severe attack of typhoid fever that he underwent two years ago left some germ of infection that at last developed into this fatal illness.

It was as successor to the lamented B. F. Aycock that Mr. Brown was first appointed on the commission, May 5, 1910, after he had given to the commission service as secretary since 1891, that eminently equipped him for the commissionership and won for him the universal verdict of being the best equipped man for the place that could be found for the commissionership.

He was born in Randolph county in 1857, a son of John Randolph and Mary A. Brown, and while yet a youth held clerkships at Chapel Hill, Gulf and Bynums, being a book-keeper in a cotton mill at the latter place. He took a business course at Poughkeepsie Business College and in 1885 became cashier of The Bank of Mt. Airy. He held this position until he was appointed secretary to the old railroad commission in 1891, continuing in this position with the railroad commission and the re-organized corporation commission up to the time he was appointed commissioner by Governor Kitchin. Following his appointment, May 6th, 1910, he was nominated in the State Democratic convention in July and elected in November and was filling out his first elective term at the time of his death.

Mrs. Brown was Miss Mollie Merritt, of Pittsboro. They were married in November, 1883, and she and two brothers and a sister survive him. They are J. Milton Brown, Albermarle; Dr. J. R. Brown, Knoxville, Tenn., and Mrs. E. M. Woodburn, Raleigh.

The funeral is to be held from Edenton Street Methodist church at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the active pall-bearers will be Joseph G. Brown, C. J. Hunter, B. S. Jerman, R. C. Strong, Chas. E. Johnson, S. Brown Shepherd, W. A. Linehan and Dr. Geo. Syme. The State officers will be honorary pall-bearers.

WILL NON-SUIT BE ENTERED?

Motion Made and Judge Connor Reserves Decision.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 4.—After an extended argument by counsel this afternoon on motions by counsel for defense for non-suits to be entered as to both defendant, W. M. Carter and American Tobacco Company, in the suit of Ware-Kramer Company, counsel for defendants consented to non-suit as to defendant, W. M. Carter, charged with conspiracy with American Tobacco Company, for destruction of cigarette business of plaintiff. Judge Connor has reserved until tomorrow his ruling as to whether non-suit shall be allowed as to American Tobacco Company.

Raleigh, N. C., July 4.—The plaintiffs rested their case this morning in Ware-Kramer Co., vs. American Tobacco Co., involving $1,200,000 damages, and counsel for both defendants, W. M. Carter and the American Tobacco Co., moved for a judgment of non-suit. This motion as to Carter was made by H. G. Connor, Jr., and for the A. T. Co., by ex-Governor Aycock. The court appointed 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon as the time for hearing contending counsel on the issue as to both defendants.

The plaintiff put on the stand this morning J. R. Hardy, agent for the Southern Express Co., and J. E. Morton and Giles Winstead, freight agents at Wilson, who testified that when the Ware-Kramer Co., would deliver freight and express for shipment representatives of Wells-Whitehead Co. would come with pencil and pad and take down address. Mr. Hardy, of express office, said he threatened to fight somebody if this was not stopped and thereafter the express shipments were not bothered.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 4.—The cornerstone of the administration building of the State Normal and Industrial School for women was laid today in the presence of Governor Mann and his staff, a large gathering of Masons from throughout the State and a great crowd. A parade was one of the features of the celebration and the cornerstone laying was according to Masonic rites.

RECIPROCITY ONLY MEASURE

Republican Insurgents Predict It Will be Sole Tariff Legislation of Extra Session—Say It Will Pass Unamended.

Washington, July 4.—Passage of the Canadian reciprocity bill, unamended will constitute the sole tariff legislation enacted at this session of Congress, in view of most of the insurgent Republican Senators, despite the demand for other tariff reductions. This tentative conclusion is subject, however, to a final determination to be reached at an informal conference of the insurgents as soon as the absentees return to Washington, which will be in the next few days.

Notwithstanding the contention of Senator Bristow, of Kansas, that amendments reducing the duties on cotton, wool, steel, sugar, lead, leather and other rubber manufactures, should be attached to the reciprocity bill, and the proposed amending programme of Messrs. Cummins, of Iowa, LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and others, some of the insurgents who believe they reflect the view of their wing of the party generally, expressed the opinion today that the reciprocity bill would be passed about August 1st, the wool and free list bills voted down or carried over to the regular session and that Congress would adjourn quickly after disposing of reciprocity.

Speaker Champ Clark and other House leaders are anxious that the Senate take some action on the measures the House has passed and put squarely before the Senate, even if the measures are defeated.

The Speaker was one of the members of either House who braved the heat in the almost deserted capitol today and he ventured the "guess" that Congress would adjourn about September 1st.

"But it's only a guess," he cautioned. "Many of the Senators and Representatives are figuring on adjournment very soon after August 1st.

"I do not believe the House has the slightest disposition to adjourn until the Senate acts on the bills which the House sends over to it," said the Speaker, "notwithstanding the disagreeable hot weather and desire of members to get back to their homes. All we ask is that the Senate act on the reciprocity, wool and free list bills or any other bills we send over, and so long as Congress remains in session we will send bills over a fast as they can be carefully and scientifically prepared. But we are not going to rush about it."

Meantime House leaders are planning more tariff revision measures and the Ways and Means committee will meet probably next Thursday to map out a cotton schedule revision. The attitude of the insurgent Senators toward the wool bill was reflected in views expressed today by Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the insurgent leaders.

"In my opinion," said he, "the wool bill as it now stands will not receive the support of the progressive senators. It do not speak by any authority from them, but that is my judgment. However, a wool bill may be worked out of the situation which would receive their support."

The debate on the reciprocity bill will be resumed in the Senate tomorrow.

THREE KILLED IN CRASH.

Trolley and Auto Collided at Warwick, R. I., Yesterday.

Warwick, R. I., July 4.—His view cut off by a dense growth of bushes on both sides of the crossing, Gustav Menzel, of Riverside, drove his automobile directly in front of a trolley car this afternoon, and as a result, three of the occupants of the automobile are dead and Menzel and the fifth occupant are badly injured.

The dead are Mrs. Eva Hartley, 50 years old, of Providence; Miss Millie J. Hartley, 18, Mrs. Hartley's daughter and Miss Ella M. Bidwell, 27, of Providence.

Menzel's injuries consist of bruises to his back and chest and possible fracture of the skull. Raymond Hartley, 10-year-old son of Mrs. Hartley, was badly bruised.

San Antono, Texas, July 4.—One and a quarter million dead flies in one heap, being piled three feet high, and five feet wide, represents the slaughter wrought by small boys as the result of a fly killing contest, which closed here today. Robert Basse carried off first prize of $10 with an official record of 484,320 dead flies.

TAFT TAKES PART IN CELEBRATION

Reciprocity Speech Parting Touch to "Safe and Sane" Fourth.

BUSY DAY AT INDIANAPOLIS

Replies to Argument of Republicans That it is Democratic Doctrine—Number of Unusual Events The—Fetures.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 4.—President Taft put the parting touch on his part in the celebration of this city's "safe and sane" Fourth in a speech on Canadian reciprocity at the Marion Club banquet tonight. The President made his answer to the argument of some Republicans that reciprocity, as he has proposed it, is not good Republican doctrine, but Democratic doctrine.

He showed that reciprocity as presented to Congress by him differed if at all only slightly from reciprocity as advocated by James G. Blaine and former President McKinley. He said the contention of the opponents of his reciprocity plan that the doctrine is un-Republican because it affects articles that are competitive, and not merely non-competitive articles, is not sound.

"The sound Republican doctrine," the President said, "has become the imposition of duties only where the conditions are naturally unequal, and where duties are necessary in order to enable our manufacturers and other producers to meet on a level the competition of foreign producers. The Canadian reciprocity agreement which has been made squares exactly with this doctrine."

Replying to the contention that reciprocity would be made wholly at the expense of the farmer and in the interest of the wage-earner of the large cities, Mr. Taft said that in his judgment "the reciprocity agreement will not greatly reduce the cost of living, if at all."

"It will," the President continued, "steady prices by enlarging the reserves of supplies for these things that are raised in both countries and it will make more remote the possibility of cornering commodities and extorting excessive prices for them from the public."

Although the sun hovered up around 110 on the streets most of the day the President enjoyed his part in the celebration of the Fourth in spite of the crowded programme and the fact that his collars would not stand for more than ten minutes at a time.

The President was the guest of former Vice-President Fairbanks. He had breakfast at the Fairbanks home and later in the morning reviewed a parade of floats from a stand at the base of the Indianapolis Soldiers' and Sailors' monument.

Practically the only unpleasant incident of the day occurred in front of this stand a half hour before his arrival when Mrs. Harry Tutewiler—occupying one of the reserved seats—was struck in the thigh by a spent bullet fired by some one whom the police tonight had not identified. Mrs. Tutewiler was not seriously hurt and the President was not informed of the incident.

Following the parade the President held a reception at the Marion Club. He took luncheon at the Columbia Club, then drove through some of the principal streets, arriving at the State fair grounds in time to witness a prearranged collison between two railroad locomotives.

The President was particularly interested in the collision. The two locomotives, starting under full steam on the same track, came together at high speed 200 yards from where the President sat. Neither one left the track, but both were reduced to scrap iron. At the ball park he awarded prizes to winners in the morning parade.

In a brief address at the fair grounds the President praised the idea of a "safe and sane Fourth," and said that he hoped to see other cities adopt it. From the fair grounds he was taken back to the home of Mr. Fairbanks, where he rested until time for the Marion club banquet.

Republican leaders that had been disturbed by alleged indications of disaffection in the failure of the party to carry the last Legislature and return Albert J. Beveridge to the United States Senate had called tonight's dinner a "harmony banquet" and it was said every effort would be made to bring together the "stand pat" and "insurgent" elements.

The only note of politics that publicly sounded during the President's visit to Indianapolis was when President Robert F. Davidson, of the Marion Club, in introducing Mr. Taft at the banquet tonight, said, turning to the President:

"We supported you in 1908, and will support you again in 1912."

This sentiment, vigorously expressed, was enthusiastically applauded.

PRAISE FOR PRESIDENT TAFT

John Hays Hammond Says No President Since Lincoln Could Have Guided Ship of State so Well.

London, July 4.—Ambassador Reid presided at the Independence banquet given by the American society at the Savoy Hotel tonight. The large gathering included Special Ambassador Hammond, many representatives of the British colonies and Rear Admiral Chadwick, U. S. N. The dinner was served at 30 small tables.

Mr. Reid in toasting the King, said it was good to know that George V was following in his lamented father's footsteps in his desire for fast friendship with the United States.

Sir Joseph Ward, premier of New Zealand, in toasting the President of the United States, described Mr. Taft as the embodiment of his Nation's best traits. He had shown consummate skill in launching a peace treaty between the great English speaking peoples.

The American ambassador, in proposing Mr. Hammond's health, eulogized President Taft's success in dealing with colossal capital combinations, in removing difficulties with the British Empire, in promoting peace in South America, reciprocity with Canada and an arbitration treaty with Great Britain.

Mr. Hammond, replying devoted his speech to a character sketch of President Taft, whose dearest hope, he said, was that out of his service to his country something may come leading to a solution of the problem of the world's peace.

He expressed the conviction that there was no president since Lincoln who could have so ably guided the ship of state through the tortuous and treacherous passages to the preseat happy and united condition. In conclusion he declared that if Anglo-Saxon civilization is to hold its place in the forefront of human life and progress carrying the spirit of liberty to mankind it must be cherished, not by an English-speaking people but by those in all parts of the world, having a common reverence for its traditions and a common determination to maintain its standards.

THIRTEEN DEATHS RECORDED.

Smallest Number Ever Known Due to Sane Fourth Movement.

Washington, July 4. — Thirteen deaths from the old-fashion celebration of the Fourth of July was the total reported in the United States, according to figures compiled by the Chicago Tribune last night.

The Nation-wide spread of the sane Fourth movement brought fruit in the smallest number of celebration casualities ever recorded. In nearly every city where the use of explosives by individuals was prohibited no accidents were reported. In others where the discharge of explosives was permitted under limitations there was a dicided falling off in the number of dead and injured as compared with previous years.

The death list of 13 compares with 28 reported the first night of last year's celebration when the sane Fourth movement was effective in fewer cities. The number of injured reported is 294, as against 1,785 reported up to the same hour last year. In 1909 there were 44 killed and 2,361 wounded.

Giant fire crackers took the lead in number of fatilities, causing five of the thirteen deaths. Revolvers and fire-arms were second with four. Gun powder caused two and the toy pistols, formerly the chief death agents, caused 2 deaths.

The heat killed many more than fell victims to the sane Fourth.

TRAGEDY OF THE FOURTH.

Deputy Sheriff Instantly Killed Near Knoxville, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 4.—A Fourth of July dance at Cupp, Campbell county, Tenn., was the scene of a bloody tragedy this afternoon. Deputy Sheriff W. Clymer was instantly killed, his 18-year-old daughter was shot and cannot live, and the man who did the shooting met death at the hands of the deputy sheriff's son. The dance was being given by Deputy Clymer. The trouble is supposed to have started over Clymer's objecting to his daughter dancing with a stranger. Forcing his daughter to quit dancing with the man, the stranger and Clymer became involved in a difficulty as a result of which Clymer was shot dead. In the firing Clymer's daughter was fatally wounded and before it had ceased the stranger had fallen dead, a bullet from a pistol in the hands of the deputy's son ending the bloody drama.

CHERRYVILLE WOMAN KILLED.

Cherryville, N. C., July 4.—Lightning struck an outhouse on the plantation of Mr. Andrew Stroub, four miles from here today and killed Miss May Coster and severely injured Messrs. Sylvanus Mauney and Charley Neil, all of Cherryville. Other members of the party, which numbered about 20, were shocked, but none seriously.

The party of young people had attended a farmers' union and rural carriers' picnic at Sunnyside Schoolhouse, four miles from here etaoin shrdlucf five miles from here. They had sought shelter in the vacant cotton house.

WOLGAST GAMELY WON OVER MORAN

Battle for Lightweight Title at 'Frisco Resulted in a Knockout.

BLOW CAME IN UNLUCKY 13TH

Fight Was Exciting Throughout and Little Englishman Had Better of Several Rounds—Battle Given in Detail.

San Francisco, July 4.—The measured swing of Referee Welsh's arm tolling off the ten seconds over the writhing body of Owen Moran, of England, brought victory to Ad Wolgast in the 13th round of today's international battle for the lightweight championship. It was a clean knockout and the decisive victory was earned by the rugged strength and punishing power of the champion.

Right uppercuts to the stomach, followed by a left hook to the jaw forced the game little English fighter to take the count for the first time in his 11 years in the ring. Moran came up undistressed for the unlucky 13th round, although it was plain he was tiring. Wolgast met him with a well timed rush and forced his way to close quarters. Moran checked him with a left jab, but was backed against the ropes in his corner. Suddenly Wolgast whipped his right arm free from the clinch, and swinging from his hip, sent his glove crashing three times to the pit of Moran's stomach.

Moran's face whitened and twisted with agony under the smear of blood from his cut lips. He groped blindly to smother the smashing blows, then his knees gave way under him and he slipped from Wolgast's grasp to the brown canvass that covered he ring.

The champion whipped over a left hook to the jaw as Moran fell, but it was not needed. Moran rolled on his side and his legs scrambled from a footing, but his mouth was open and his eyes rolled back and the shouting seconds brought no meaning to his deadened senses. It was several minutes before he regained consciousness.

As Wolgast turned to his corner more firmly planted than ever on the lightweight throne, a grin flashed across his bleeding lips and he plucked with his gloved hands at the American flag he wore about his waist. In a second he was somthered in the throng of admirers who surged into the ring, untied the battle-scarred flag and waved it over Wolgast's head.

Moran's seconds entered a claim of foul, but the blows in question were plainly seen from the ringside and the protest was disallowed.

Never for a moment during the battle did the terrific pace slacken. The American carried the fight to his opponent from the first tap of the gong, as Moran was never able to keep him at long range.

It was in clinches that the champion showed to best advantage. Moran was unable to perfect a defense against the short, ripping right uppercuts. Wolgast worked to his ribs and the "loop the loop" punch, a right uppercut to the face outside his own left arm that snapped the Britisher's head back repeatedly and kept his mouth bleeding from the first round.

At long range, Moran clearly outpointed the Michigan boy, and his clever ducking and footwork extricated him from many a tight corner. It was a battle of a clever and experienced boxer against a tearing, ripping fighter, and the fighter weathered the storm with never a sign of distress.

It was a rough fight from the start. As the first round opened, Moran came willingly to close quarters, but was met with a volley of short lefts to the face and a right uppercut that brought blood from his lips. It was the champion's round by a wide margin and Moran came back for the second with instructions to stay away. With wonderful judgment of distance he slipped away from Wolgast's vicious swings, flashing in with clean cut lefts and rights as the champion opened up. It was Moran's round, and he continued to pursue the same tactics throughout the fight. When forced to close quarters in the third Moran fought back viciously. They roughed it head to head. Wolgast working his right to the kidneys and body and Moran working his left hand and forearm into Ad's chin and face and holding the champion even. Both were bleeding when the round closed.

Moran seemed to gain confidence as the fight progressed. Shifting in and out as lithe as a panther.

Shifting in and out as lithe as a panther, he landed cleanly repeatedly throughout the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds, rocking Ad's head with hard, clean punches and making Wolgast look almost like an amateur by the way he avoided his swings. His cleverness brought frequent applause, but he never stopped Wolgast's steady advance, and Wolgast plainly was the stronger.

In the seventh, Wolgast forced the Englishman to the ropes, where they fought toe to toe until parted by the referee, Moran having all the better of the exchange, but Wolgast evened matters before the round was over by his wicked upper-cuts. Wolgast bored in, and although Owen crossed his right often to Ad's head in the eighth and ninth rounds, he was unable to

Why is Sugar Sweet?

If sugar did not dissolve in the mouth you could not taste the sweet. BROKE IN TELEPHONE OFFICE.

Watch, Pistol and Money Stolen—Other Lumberton Items.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, July 4.—The Fourth passed off here very quietly, being observed only by the postoffice, banks and cotton mills. All other places of business were open as usual and court was in session throughout the day.

Sheriff McNeill's report which was submitted to the County Commissioners yesterday, shows that he has done some fine work in collecting taxes for the year 1910. The total amount of taxes with which he was charged for the year was $165,861.92. According to the report the insolvent amounts due are $1,312.11.

Pistol toters, retailers of blockade liquor and other law breakers are in trouble. They have already learned that "the way of evil doers is hard," in Judge Whedbee's court.

Mrs. B. E. Altman, aged about 21 years, died at the hospital here this morning about 6 o'clock from an attack of pneumonia and other complications.

Sunday night about 12 o'clock some one familiar with the telephone office managed to manipulate the lock so as to enter without disturbing the night operator who was asleep. The intruder cut off the night bell and after taking a watch and pistol and several dollars in cash left unobserved. The watch and pistol were recovered and the man who is said to have had them has disappeared. The operator at the telephone office says he is positive he locked the door leading to the office.

Sheriff McNeill, who has been very sick for several days, is doing as well as could be expected.—Mr. Joseph E. Thompson, managing editor of The Star, is also improving and his physician has agreed to allow him to go down stairs tomorrow.

Oscar Edwards, formerly of Wilmington, but for the past year or two residing here, was tried in court today for resisting an officer about six months ago. He was found guilty but judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs.

BURMAN'S AUTO RECORD.

Markes Circuit of Brighton Beach Track in 48:72 Seconds.

New York, July 4.—A new world's automobile record for one mile was established by Bob Burman today at the Brighton Beach Motordrome at the conclusion of the two day race meeting. The record fell when Burman in his Blitzen Benz with a flying start made a circuit of the mile track in 48.72 seconds, one-fifth of a second better than DePalma in a Fiat car made last year at Syracuse.

Burman also won the Remey Brassard trophy by taking two straight heats of three miles each with the Benz car, his best time being 2:37.38. Len Zengle, driving a National of 600 inches displacement, won the ten mile event and also the Australian pursuit race after covering nearly 24 miles.

Louis Disbrow finished first with a Pope-Hartford in the 50-mile contest after being compelled to leave the track for repairs at least four times. The other events were at five miles each for non-stock cars in which Patschke with a Benz, Tyron with a Correja, and Tower, driving an E. M. F. were the winners.

Escaped With His Life.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough. I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." Its positvely guaranteed for coughs, colds and all bronichal affections. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at R. R. Bellamy.

HAS BOLL WEEVIL APPEARED?

Peculiar Insect Destroying Cotton in Columbus—News Notes.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Whiteville, N. C., July 4.—Farmers around Lebanon complain that an insect, resembling the Texas boll weevil, is destroying their cotton, consuming the young bolls as soon as the bloom drops. One farmer says these pests have about ruined a fine field of cotton for him.

While a greater part of our county has been blessed with abundant rains and crops are as fine and promising as the land can produce, there are isolated dry streaks, where crops are beginning to suffer for rain. There is a strip of country about one and a half mile wide, extending on both sides of and including Tabor, that has not had any rain, and also a section around Pireway. But these dry dry streaks are narrow and scattering. Taken as a whole, there was never a finer outlook for both corn and cotton.

The following faculty has been chosen for the Whiteville High School for the ensuing session, there being several changes from last year. Mr. W. R. Smithwick, of Windsor, principal; Mr. O. V. Hamrick, of Shelby, assistant principal; Miss Mattie Jones, of Richmond; Mrs. Sallie Floyd, Watson, of Hickory; Miss Eloise Coulling, of Richmond; Miss Mollie Bell Hollowell, of Whiteville; Miss Elizabeth Toon, of Whiteville; Miss Lucy Earnhardt, of Lenoir; Miss Sue Russell, of Hubert, and Miss Mary Cecil, of Dublin, Va.

The body of Mr. Harry Coleman, formerly of Whiteville, and who was killed by the train at Jacksonville, Fla., was brought to Florence, S. C., where it was interred.

Yesterday was a great day both at Lake Waccamaw and Fair Bluff. Large crowds attended both places.

Misses Gladys Thompson and Alma Maultsby are attending the large house party of 18, given by Misses Mary and Agnes Council, at Lake Waccamaw.

Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Willingham, nee Miss Foy Johnson, of Raleigh, are visiting relatives here. They will soon leave for Japan, where Mr. Willingham has been for two years in the missionary field.

Whiteville was filled with visitors yesterday in attendance on the Davis-Memory nuptials. Only members of the family were present.

Dr. H. B. Maxwell has cured a well developed case of pellagra near Whiteville.

WALLACE INDEPENDENTS.

Played Well Matched Game on Local Diamond Yesterday.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wallace, N. C., July 4.—The Wallace "Red Bugs" and the Wallace "Giants" battled for nine innings this afternoon, the final score showing a victory for the latter team of 6 to 4. N. Boney was on the mound for the Giants and Cavanaugh pitched excellent ball for the "Red Bugs," but without avail. It was a well played game with few errors and several sensational plays. Boney, the Giant's pitcher poled out two two-base hits, and A. Cavanaugh got one, while the feature of the game was a long hit for three bags by Turner, of the Giants.

CRISIS AT ANTWERP.

Belgian and Dutch Workers Engage in Sort of War.

Brussels, June 24.—A remarkable crisis in threatening the Antwerp diamond-cutting trade. Owing to competition at the hands of their Dutch colleagues, the Antwerp cutters have been compelled to reduce their working expenses and to give more work to private workmen in the Antwerp province, to the detriment of the workmen serving in the Antwerp workshops.

On the other hand, always owing to the Dutch competition, several great firms of Atnwerp are contemplating the transfer of their workshops to Bruges, where labor is cheaper than in Antwerp.

HOOKWORM COMMISSION

Field Hospital Established in Columbus for Treatment of Victims—Charlotte-Wilmington Highway — Other Notes.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Whiteville, N. C., July 4.—Dr. C. C. Pridgen, one of the district directors of the Hookworm Commission, was in Whiteville yesterday and stated to the Star's correspondent that he had completed arrangements to establish a field hospital in Columbus county. The hospital will remain for a period of several weeks, during which time free treatment for the hookworm disease will be given. Dr. Pridgen has ordered the hospital shipped from Raleigh to Chadbourn, where it will remain for some time. During its stay in Chadbourn, it will be moved to other parts of the county. This field hospital is made possible by $50 per week, contributed by the county, and $150 a week, presented by the Hookworm Commission. The work will be under the personal supervision of Dr. Pridgen.

Capt. Granger, Road Supervisor of Columbus county, was in town yesterday. He says there are now five cases of typhoid fever among the convicts and one case of tuberculosis. There are 29 convicts in the gang. Captain Granger says he is at work on the eastern section of the Wilmington-to-Charlotte highway in Columbus county. He is opening seven miles of new road, four miles between Bolton tween Freeman and New Berlin. He says when these stretches of road are completed one can travel from Wilmington to Fair Bluff, on the South Carolina line, and only cross one water course.

Last Saturday a negro named Irby Ford escaped from the chain gang in this county, and a reward of $50 is offered for his capture Irby was a trusty and was sent back to finish up some work when he ran away.

Mr. Henry Wayne, Jr., aged 19 years, died at his home at Wananish on Friday evening, after a week's illness with fever. Mr. Wayne was taken ill at Boardman, where he held a position. The death of this young man is peculiarly sad as he gave promise of much in life and was highly esteemed.

Mrs. Martha Hill, an inmate of the County Home, died this week.

Drs. J. C. Sikes and Richard Smith spent several days last week at Morehead City, where they stood the examination before the State Board and it is needless to say that both of these young gentlemen passed not only a successful but a very splendid examination, for both are experienced and now hold three certificates.

Miss Rosa McRoy, the attractive and loveable young daughter of Mr. R. B. McRoy, the popular Vineland merchant, is on an extended visit to Florida.——Miss Sarah Burkhead arrived Saturday from Raleigh to visit her mother here——Miss Aycock, of Fremont, is the attractive guest of Miss Margaret Baldwin. Miss Aycock is a daughter of the late Corporation Commissioner Aycock, and who at one time lived in Whiteville. Her many girlhood friends are giving her a cordial welcome.——Mrs. Rachael Hevenor returned home on Sunday from an extended visit to Florida.

Mrs. Laurence Harrelson and charming Miss Katharine Harrelson returned to their homes at Mount Olive on Sunday after a visit of several weeks with relatives here.

Mr. Mayland Williamson, of Mississippi, one of the Whiteville boys that is making a name in the business world, is on a visit to his mother, Mrs. J. I. EXISTED ONLY ON PAPER.

North Carolina Orchard Co., Merely Name and Hot Air.

Fayetteville, N. C., July 4.—It has developed that so far as paid-in capital is concerned no such company has ever existed as the North Carolina Orchard Company, although a charter was secured for such a company early in May. W. E. Housel, of New York, promoter of the enterprise, has not been in Fayetteville for several weeks, having left here ostensively to go to his home after Mrs. Housel.

Ex-Justice James S. Manning of Durham, was named in the literature of the company as president and Mr. John O. Ellington, vice president of the Fourth National Bank of Fayetteville, as treasurer. Board of directors included J. O. Ellington, of Fayetteville; Sanford T. Church, of Aberdeen, New York; Brodie L. Duke, of Durham; Paul Garrett, of Norfolk; W. S. Housel, of Holley, New York; R. O. Everett, attorney, of Durham and J. B. Mason, cashier of the Citizens National Bank, of Durham.

Judge Manning has stated that so far as he knows the company only existed on paper; that Housel came to his office in Durham to employ his firm to get a charter for the company and this was done. He stated that he had never attended a meeting of the stockholders and only regarded his connection as nominal. Mr. Ellington says the company only existed in the vivid imagination of Housel who regards as purely and simply a promoter. He says he has never qualified as treasurer.

When the charter was secured a story was sent out from Durham to the effect that the company would develop large tracts of land in Harnett county and that it was proposed to grow peaches, fruits of several kinds, pecans and vegetables. In the prospectus it was stated that a tract of 10,000 acres had been secured and an effort would be made at once to locate 500 families on the land. It was stated that the company would have an authorized capital stock of $350,000 of which amount $250,000 would be common stock.

SUPERIOR COURT IN DUPLIN.

Large Criminal Docket—New Court House—Other Items.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Magnolia, N. C., July 4.—Superior court, for the trial of criminal cases only, convened for a week's term Monday, Judge O. H. Allen presiding. Our people are especially glad to have Judge Allen, who, aside from his long experience on the bench and judicial temperament, is a native of Duplin, having been born and spent his boyhood days in Kenansville.

Hon. H. E. Shaw, of Kinston, as solicitor, is looking after the State's interest on the criminal docket. There are quite a number of cases, nearly all negroes, one of whom stands charged with murder, killing another negro at a lumber camp near Wallace a few weeks ago, and who was captured in Wilmington.

His excellency, Gov. W. W. Kitchin, honored our county with a visit Monday. He and Dr. F. L. Stevens, of the A. & M. College, Raleigh, addressed an educational mass meeting at Kenansville in the interest of a farm life school for Duplin county and were listened to very attentively by several hundred of our people who seemed to be in sympathy with the movement, as shown by a resolution introduced by Mr. June Shine, of Faison, which was unanimously passed, requesting the board of education to take necessary steps to call an election to vote on the issuing of bonds for the school. The board will at no distant date ask for the election, which will probably take place during the Fall.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education at Kenansville Monday, Mr. A. L. McGowan, the wide-awake cashier of the Bank of Duplin, Wallace, who was appointed a member by the last Legislature, vice Mr. H. A. Beasley, who by reason of his growing law practice could not longer serve, qualified, and the board organized by the election of W. R. Newbury as chairman. Prof. Wooten, of Magnolia, was elected county superintendent of education for two years. Petitions for creating three special tax districts were approved.

That Duplin will have a new and modern court house is assured, as the contract for a $35,000 building has been let. The old court house has already been torn down to make room for the new one. The contract calls for the completion of the new building by April 1st, 1912.

Mr. L. A. Beasley is behind the movement for a motor car line from Kenansville to the railroad, and is meeting with much encouragement.

Mr. Paul Kornegay, son of Mr. Peter Kornegay, of Kenansville, is desperately ill with typhoid, with slight hope of his recovery.——Mr. Alton Kilpatrick, aged about 15, son of Mr. Amos Kilpatrick, of Rose Hill, died today of appendicitis.——Dr. T. E. Hughes, who has been with the James Walker Memorial Hospital for the past year, has located at Magnolia for the practice of his profession.——Crop prospects in Duplin are very bright. There have been good seasons and all crops are growing fine.

Revs. C. T. Rogers, of Magnolia, and J. M. Lowder, of Kenansville; Messrs. A. S. Merritt, M. B. Taylor and W. R. Newbury, of Magnolia; R. P. Raiford and Prof. B. I. Tart, of Warsaw; J. S. Rouse and T. W. Fussel, of Rose Hill, leave Wednesday morning for district conference at Southport.

Dr. John M. Faison, our alert Congressman from this district, is spending a few days at home and was shaking hands with his friends at Kenansville Monday.

DROUGHT DAMAGES CROPS.

Serious Situation in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri—Hot Weather.

Kansas City, Mo., July 4.—Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri crops are suffering from the hot, dry weather. Approximately 100 of the 114 counties in Missouri are greatly in need of rain. A report issued today by T. C. Wilson, secretary of the Missouri Board of Agriculture, declares that with plenty of rain from now on, an immense yield of corn is assured, but that if the drouth continues the crop will be ruined.

The wheat harvest is unusually early. The preliminary estimate on yield is 14.8 bushels per acre; last year, 13.2.

The drouth has virtually ruined the oats crop, says the report, and nearly all new clover and timothy is dead. The potato crop is almost a failure. The State estimate on fruit is 51 per cent of normal.

Drouth has done more damage to Oklahoma crops, according to a statement by Secretary Hennessy, of the Oklahoma Board of Agriculture.

"There is every prospect for a big cotton crop," he said, "but the outlook for other crops is not good. Corn has been baldy hurt by lack of rain."

Five deaths due to the heat and many prostrations were reported here today. A temperature of 103 this afternoon established a new record for the year.

One death from heat occurred at Atchison, Kas., where the thermometer registered 108, the hottest July 4 on record.

The highest temperature reported in Kansas today was at Junction City, where the thermometer showed 109 degrees. Topeka and Salina reported 106 and Abilene 105.

Southwest Missouri continued to swelter, the maximum temperature at Joplin being 104.

WARM LOUISIANA FIGHT.

Race for Senate and Governor—Speeches on Fourth.

Ruston, La., July 4.—What gives promise of being the warmest political campaign experienced in Louisiana in a decade, with the gubernatorial chair and two United States senatorial seats the principal plums at stake, opened here today. Special trains brought more than 3,000 people from all parts of the State and in the midst of the speech-making an old-time Fourth of July barbecue was served.

There are six candidates in the race for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. For governor the candidates are Secretary of State John E. Michel, the recognized administration representative; Dr. J. B. Aswell, who recently resigned as president of the Louisiana State Normal School, and Judge Luther E Hall, of the Supreme Court, who has the endorsement of the good government league.

Senator Foster sent a letter from Washington expressing regret at his inability to be present.

VOTE ON BONDS POSTPONED

Interest in Wake Not What Was Expected—Superintendent Schools Judd Re-Elected—Officers Observed Fourth.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 4.—The vote in Wake county on the issuance of $300,000 bonds for the improvement of roads that was scheduled for August 31st has been postponed to the first Tuesday in November, this continuance to apply also to the election on farm-life school, which was scheduled to be held at the same time with the road bond election. A big committee is named to set on foot movements that shall quicken interest in the two propositions which have not met with the enthusiastic support that it was expected they would.

The Wake County Board of Education has re-elected Z. V. Judd, superintendent of the Wake county public schools and Miss Edith Royster as his assistant.

News reaches here of the burning of the residence and outbuildings of Dr. N. M. Blalock, 18 miles from Raleigh, in the Myatt's Mill section of the county. Rats and matches are thought to have started the fire.

The State offices were closed most of today in observance of the Glorious Fourth. A big free fireworks display tonight at Pullen Park provided by the street railway company, was the principal feature of observance.

EIGHTY-FIVE ACCIDENTS.

"Safe and Sane" Fourth In New York—Eventful Day.

New York, July 4.—The glorious Fourth was shorn of most of its terrors today by New York's "safe and sane" programme which barred fireworks, but notwithstanding the ban their surreptitious use resulted in two deaths and eighty-five accidents, mostly of a minor nature, and twenty small fires.

The city substituted for a noisy Fourth a day of parades, speech-making and flag-raising, and an evening of fireworks in 74 parks. Forty nations were represented in the processions. One of the most notable figures was Gen. Joseph Garibaldi, fresh from laurels, won during the Mexican Revolution. He was loudly cheered. Another visitor was Manuel Quezon, Philippine commissioner at Washington, who pleaded for independence of the Philippines, before a large audience at Tammany Hall.

Other speakers included Representatives Underwood and Clayton, of Alabama.

A number of prominent men who were unable to be present sent letters. Gov. Dix said: "Democrats of the State and Nation have every reason to face the future with confidence and courage. I believe the Democratic party has passed through the period of storm and defeat, and is facing a long period of success and triumph."

Gov. Baldwin, of Connecticut, concluded a eulogy of the Democratic party with the prophecy: "Next year will crown the work by the election of a Democratic administration at Washington."

Similar expressions were received from William J. Bryan and Champ Clark.

During hot weather like this it is a little hard on President Taft to go skylarking after another nomination. It is a singular circumstance that this four years' administration does not assure him his renomination without worrying over it. However, his party is obliged to nominate him whether it likes to do so or not.

The Houston Chronicle philosopher says: "Man is a fool by nature, but a sage in proportion to the truth and earnestness of his religion." A Georgian proposes to erect a monument to the Ku Klux Klan. That might preserve its history in better shape than some of the novels that have been and are yet to be written about that once mysterious and purposeful order. An old Ku Klux doubtless will have to laugh at the romances which are being made to figure in a situation of stern realities.

The amenities of Senatorial debate in New York are illuminated by State Senator Hoey who referred to the speech of another Senator as "the squawk of a dying gladiator trying to throw mud." What have the gladiators done that they are supposed to have thrown mud like an ordinary muckraker? The idea of mud's being the weapon of a gladiator instead of his trusty blade! We prefer the gladiator of poetry. Don't let's get a wrong idea of the real gladiator.

DO WE MEAN BUSINESS?

The actual gain in the value of exports and imports or the customs year ended June 3, 1911, was $8,732,511 over 1910. The percentage gain in exports was 37 per cent., and in imports 35 per cent. This indicates a remarkable growth of commerce, and while the high price of cotton was largely responsible for the increased valuation of exports, the substantial and steady increase of Wilmington's commerce is due to the water tremi-nal facilities utilized by the handlers of the articles of commerce of this port.

Our largest article of export is cotton and the modern compress and terminal facilities of Messrs. Alexander Sprunt & Son are responsible for it. The plant is located right on the water front where ships can be loaded for the European cotton markets, while the railroads run right alongside the compress, thus affording ideal facilities for receiving cotton from the interior as well as forwarding cargoes by ocean steamers. Of course, business enterprise is the foundation of our commerce, both as to exports and imports, and but for enterprise, business capacity and capital, as the prime factors we would have no commerce even though we had a 60-foot channel for ocean traffic. Nevertheless, water and rail facilities must be recognized as the basic elements of success in doing our large and increasing port traffic.

There are some other port facilities which contribute to the enlargement of our commerce, but we point to the most conspicuous to illustrate the prime importance of modern facilities for attaining and handling commerce. We have the object lesson before us, and since we find that Wilmington is especially adapted to world commerce and has grown to be the world's fourth cotton port, we learn that the greatest city building asset we have is commerce. Therefore, our energies and efforts should be bent towards making that asset greater by increasing and enlarging our rail and water terminals as a sure means of enlarging our commerce.

By reason of the fact that the port of Wilmington has made good and continues to make good, and because the future of commerce at this port justifies the expenditure, the government is at work on two great projects to make this a still more important port. The one of prime significence is the 30-foot navigable channel from Wilmington to the sea, upon which work is now progressing in such a satisfactory manner that it is anticipated that a depth of 30 feet will be attained in two years or in probably less time. The other project is the canalization of the Cape Fear river from Wilmington to Fayetteville, upon which project the government is now steadily at work. The canalization of the river will give a navigable depth of 8 feet to Fayetteville, a water distance of about 120 miles, thus making Fayetteville one of the most important inland ports of this country.

Do we people of Wilmington, Southport and Fayetteville fully appreciate the significence of these harbor and river improvements? Their completion means the opportunity for doing a commerce of immense proportions if we will avail ourselves of that opportunity. It means that we will have three commercial cities on the Cape Fear—Wilmington, Southport and Fayetteville—so that doubtless there are few waterways in the United States that at once becomes so important as the Cape Fear. With all three cities taking steps to increase their commerce, it is easy to foresee at no distant day a Cape Fear commerce of huge proportions, making this a port of great world importance. We will have a port extending from the bar to Fayetteville, a water distance of about 150 miles, and the possibilities are so great that it staggers us to contemplate it.

What is Southport, Wilmington and Fayetteville going to do with these possibilities? What are they going to do with their actually great opportunities? Now that Southport has a railroad and in all probability will have more than one, it is inevitable that commerce will spring up there, but it will largely depend upon the terminal facilities for handling commerce both at Southport and Fayetteville, just as it does at Wilmington with its already large commerce. With the proper facilities at all three ports, we can build a commerce that will make the nation sit up and take notice.

It is reasonable to expect interesting developments at Southport, and as for Fayetteville she has the opportunity to largely increase her already considerable inland commerce. The low water rate that it will give her should attract to that point an ever-increasing amount of commerce going and coming, and the more Fayetteville does the more Wilmington will do. The more Wilmington does the better it will be for Southport, and the more Southport can do, the more important will it make Wilmington. Our Southport friends must get it out of their heads that Southport is in any sense a competitor of Wilmington, and Wilmington should not get it into its head that Southport is Wilmington's competitor. They are not competitors except in the sense that two or more jobbing houses are competitors, each enlarging the business of a city, while the two ports will simply enlarge the commerce of the greater port of Wilmington-Southport-Fayetteville. The three shipping points will all magnify the greatness of the port, just as an increase of mercantile and industrial establishments magnify the importance of a city. It is commerce for this great Cape Fear waterway that we are after, and the bigger it is the more important will be the factors in it—Wilmington, Southport and Fayetteville.

Upon what Southport is going to do as to terminals, depends her commercial growth, and as to Fayetteville, if she seizes her opportunities, she will at once construct water terminals that will insure her importance as a water and rail distributing point. An eight-foot channel should give Fayetteville a considerable amount of ocean traffic. Not only will some classes of ocean steamers be enabled to go up as high as Fayetteville but ocean freight barges must inevitably cut a considerable figure in Fayetteville's business and commercial opportunities. The canalization of the Cape Fear will immensely add to her importance as a distributing and receiving point, and we want to tip it off to our Fayetteville friends that if they expect to measure up to their full opportunities they should get busy and put in water termnials for handling traffic with greater despatch and consequent economy in money and time. We don't mean a fairly decent steamer landing, but a modern wharf, warehouse and passenger rooms, all designed to increase freight traffic and steamer travel. The long and costly delay in loading and unloading steamers in the old way will have to give way to the modern way of rapidly doing the work by steam or electrical hoists, slings, conveyors, and the like, all a part of her termnial facilities. What did Fayetteville want with an eight-foot channel, if she isn't going to do as much for herself as the government will do in canalizing the Cape Fear at great cost—a scheme of large proportions? Oh, you Fayetteville!

Now there's Wilmington with her proposition to vote $200,000 in bonds to construct modern municipal terminals. She will have to vote those bonds and get to work, to take care of all the business that she will do herself and handle what Fayetteville and Southport will help to bring to these great waters.

VAST PRODUCTION OF GOLD.

We seem to be living in the real Golden Age, since the world's production of gold last year surpassed all previous records in the earth's yield of the precious metal.

According to the Philadelphia Press some of the figures of the immense production of yellow treasure are surprising. For instance, Mexico until recently on a silver basis furnished $24,000,000 in gold to the general supply. Siberia, that mysterious land of such vast mineral resources, yielded a large proportion of the new Russian gold, which had a total of $33,000,000.

Australia and New Zealand are so far from having exhausted their gold fields that the antipodean mines were third on the list, with $67,000,000. Second place was taken by the United States with about $96,000,000 of new gold, but this was little more than one half of the African production, totaling close to $177,000,000. The dark continent gave up virtually 40 per cent of the total output.

Of this treasure the mines of the Trasvaal yielded about $160,000,000, Rhodesia almost $13,000,000, and West Africa less than $4,000,000. From all sources there was an aggregate gold production for the year of $460,000,000. This is about one-third of the entire national debt of the United States. It would do little more than pay for the corn crop of the South last year, which was practically one-third of the whole corn crop of the United States. It would not pay for half the amount of cotton exported by the South last year, to say nothing of the wheat grown by American farmers in the West.

The Press, in referring to the tremendous world production of gold, makes note of the fact that it has a definite and well-understood influence on prices. Consequently, it observes, "there is not a little comfort in the cheerful information that last year's additions to the stock of the precious metal surpasses any previous record." The Press goes on to make this interesting observation:

"These facts will give a fair comparison of the gold-producing industry of the world as compared with American agriculture. They illustrate the difference between true wealth and the precious metal which as the medium of exchange is merely the token of economic wealth and the servant of commerce. Crops, however, are perishable and quickly consumed; gold is endurable and remains to perform its economic office through the ages and serves as the standard of value. A few years ago the advocates of free silver were vociferating the assertion that gold was forever increasing its purchasing power because the supply was incommensurate with the needs of the world; but the facts are now fully recognized to the contrary. Rising prices are predicted by conservative European authorities as the result of last year's addition to the gold supply which has become available for coinage."

With the South's cotton crop this year estimated at 14,500,000 bales and plenty of money in sight in various parts of the world with which to buy it, there should be a great demand for the South's great staple at good prices. If the crop even approximates 13,000,000 bales the South is assured of prosperity on an enduring basis.

One of the great railway systems is urging its employes to save it a nickle each day. This may serve to impress upon the employes that it is a good idea and that it is a better idea still for charity to begin at the home of the railroad man.

It is gratifying that such cheerful crop news is coming from the fine agricultural country contiguous to Wilmington. The Star's Whiteville correspondent has been giving us accounts of the prospects of a bountiful crop in Columbus, and the tidings from Robeson are glowing. Mr. J. B. Humphrey, a prosperous and wide-awake farmer of Robeson, was in Lumberton a few days ago and concerning a chat with him the Robesonian says: "He says cotton is doing well, where the farmers have a stand, and corn is just simply the finest for the season of the year he ever saw. Mr. Humphrey is making an effort to win the prize of $50 offered by the Bank of Lumberton to the farmer who makes the most corn on an acre, and if the seasons hold out he says that he will not be a bit surprised if he walks off with that $50. Mr. Judson Prevatt, who lives only a few miles from Saddle Tree, won the first prize of $50 given by the Bank of Lumberton last year; so it looks like farmers in other parts of the county will have to step lively."

CURRENT COMMENT.

As the authorities cannot stop them from selling whiskey, we are not so sure that they can stop them from selling beer, still it is better not to license them in a prohibition State.—Durham Herald.

"That gentleman who advertised yesterday to meet 'a lady or a widow' is going to have some explaining to do if he meets the widow!"—Daytona News. Possibly he may be occupying the next hospital cot to the man who mentioned the "men and tenors" in a church choir.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, which has a heavy freight traffic across Maine to St. John, N. B., is arranging with the Erie for its practical control, and thereby a terminal in New York. The Grand Trunk, whose line to Portland aids greatly the prosperity of that American port, is planning to complete the Southern New England, which will bring it to the sea at Providence. The passage of Canadian freight through the United States in bond has for years been a great factor in American business and is certain to increase. This is reciprocity that waits for no treaty. The product of the Northern forest, mine and field seeks the ice-free port. The product of American factories seeks rural Canada. The natural roads of traffic cross the border. How silly, how futile, how wasteful, to maintain the tariff barrier across them to the hurt of both nations!—New York World.

One cannot make a town. The newspaper cannot do it. But one man on a newspaper with the help of the wide-awake men of the place, all pulling together, can make a wide difference in the place. Every man who succeeds in a town is a help to it. The more money he makes, if he spends it, the better for the community. The larger business he builds up, the more he advertises, and hence the more attention he brings to the town. A man cannot build up an honorable business in the town without helping the country. The interest of one is the interest of all. No town will become a business center so long as its business men rely upon a few merchants to make the effort to bring trade to town. Too often the men in a few lines of trade are about the only ones that reach out for custom. Other merchants will wait until these men have induced the people to come to town and content themselves with trade that naturally drifts to their place. A public spirited man should ask himself if he is doing his part in attracting people to town to trade.—Salisbury Post.

It is a long time since 1776, still it is rather interesting to compare a clause of the Declaration of Independence with the platform of the Nativists, a new political party which is making somewhat of a stir in the East and Middle West. The eighth fact which the Declaration "submitted to a candid world," among its reasons for dissolving the ties which bound the colonies to the mother land was: "He (the King) has endeavored to prevent the naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and in raising the conditions of new appropriations of land." This was one of the most important items in the indictment of King George III. It was an influencing cause of the Revolutionary War. The colonics wanted people and would even fight to get them. Now come the Nativists who are willing to fight, bleed and die to keep foreigners out. And the Nativists pose as typical Americans with special pride in American traditions. No one at present believes unrestricted immigration to be an unmixed blessing, but these United States are still in need of the right kind of immigrants; and Virginia, which has traditions unsurpassed by any State of the Union, if not unequalled, would gladly welcome a large number of them.—Norfolk Landmark.

The city Council of Columbia has adopted a resolution providing that a graduate nurse be employed by the city health department. "She will visit all reported cases," declares the Record, "first with the health officer, and after that will devote such time as she deems advisable to teaching the poor how to prevent the spread of the infection existing in their homes. She will have charge of the sanitary work in all the female colleges. She will inspect all department stores where women are employed. She will have charge, under the health officer, of the inspection of all restaurants, hotels and lunch rooms." The value to the municipality of the office thus created is certain to be great. Not in a single month or even year will the nurse make definite her results possibly, but results there will be, however, gradually they may show themselves. In matters of municipal sanitation the most pressing need is that the people should be made to realize the necessity of acquainting themselves with at least the fnudamental sanitary laws. Where ignorance of these is permitted to remain undisturbed, conditions are sure to be inimical to health. A tactful, efficient nurse will be able to reach homes which the most enthusiastic and conscientious male official would find quite barred to him. We congratulate Columbia upon this forward step and hope to see it widely imitated.—Charlotte Observer.

TEXACO ROOFING

is made of solid, extra heavy, first quality, wool felt, thoroughly saturated with Texaco Bitumen, over 99 per cent pure, and afterward finished with an extra heavy coating of the same material.

TEXACO BITUMEN—over 99 per cent pure — possesses great fire-resisting properties, is not oxidized by the action of the elements, is impervious to the action of acids, fumes and gases, is not injured by the extremes of heat and cold, and remains adhesive and pliable.

The weakest point of ready roofing is at the lap, due to the disintegration and hardening of the cement used, but Texaco Roofing Cement, made of bitumen over 99 per cent pure, insures a permanent waterproof lap.

The principal merits of TEXACO ROOFING are:
ECONOMY of first cost and application.
SIMPLICITY and ease of application.
PERFECTION of weather and water-resisting qualities.
MAXIMUM of strength and durability.
FIRE-RESISTING.
PLIABILITY and immunity from injury by extremes of temperature; and, last but not least,
A PERMANENT LAP, by use of Texaco Roofing Cement, which gives security, strength and waterproofing at the weakest point of a roof.

THOUSANDS WITNESS EVENTS

Athletic Meet at Wrightsville Beach Drew Large Crowd to Resort—Winners in the Several Contests.

The annual Fourth of July athletic meet at Lumina and the yacht races of the Carolina Yacht Club attracted thousands to Wrightsville Beach yesterday morning and afternoon, while in the evening hundreds went down for the souvenir dance given by the Tidewater Power Co. The crowd was the largest ever to witness 4th of July events in front of Lumina. The transportation company hauled probably one thousand more people than last year. While most of estimated 5,000 or 6,000 at Lumina in the afternoon are townspeople, there were a goodly number from the surrounding section.

The day was ideal and so far as could be learned nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of any one. The mercantile and business houses as well as the banks and public offices were closed and the postoffice observed holiday hours. It was exceedingly quiet in the city and there were very few people on the streets during the day. While the bulk of the pleasure seekers went to Wrightsville Beach several hundreds enjoyed the day at Carolina Beach. An excursion was run under the auspices of the local lodges of the Junior Order and the steamer Wilmington made the usual three trips, the last boat returning to the city late last night.

Crowds began to journey to Wrightsville Beach early yesterday morning, so when the first event of the morning was pulled off at 10:30 o'clock there were already a goodly number of people assembled. Every electric train arriving afterward brought several hundred. Four-car express trains were operated with a one-car local train following. The company handled the crowds admirably. The schedule was better observed than usual on heavy traffic days. The company had the three new cars recently built at its plant in this city in service yesterday and they are "dandies," being a great improvement over the old cars. Mr. A. B. Skelding, general manager of the company, stated yesterday that all the beach cars would undergo a thorough overhauling in the Fall and several improvements added, which are embodied in the new car. These new cars came in well yesterday. They enabled the company to better handle the crowds.

The Athletic Events.

The athletic events were held in front of Lumina. They were arranged under the direction of Mr. J. B. Huntington, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and the prizes offered were given by the Tidewater Power Company. To his untiring efforts is due much of the credit of the success of yesterday's meet, which is pronounced the greatest ever held at the beach. The officials of the events, all of whom should have especial mention, were: Referee, W. W. Koch; marshal, J. B. Huntington; judges, J. U. King, H. G. Foard, M. Gore and Red Houston; clerk of course, B. A. Thees; scorer, T. G. Duls. The following are the events of the morning, successful contestants and prizes awarded:

100 yard dash, (under 110 lbs)—1st, Carlyle Sheppard, silver cup; 2nd, Robt. Williams, three tickets; 3rd, Norman Davis, one ticket.

100 yard dash, (110 lbs and over)—1st, Harry Solomon, silver cup; 2nd, George Clark, three tickets; 3rd, Clayton Smith, one ticket.

Running broad jump, (under 110 lbs.)—1st, Carlyle Sheppard, 15 feet, 8 1-2 inches, silver medal; 2nd, B. Davis, three tickets; 3rd, Robt. Williams, one ticket.

Running broad jump, (110 lbs. and over)—1st, Harry Solomon, 17 feet, 3 1-2 inches, silver medal; 2nd, C. Smith, three tickets; 3rd, Joe LeMoyne, one ticket.

Sack race, (under 110 lbs.) 50 yards—1st, Fred Hansley, silver cup; 2nd, W. McIntyre, three tickets; 3rd, W. Schnibben, one ticket.

Sack race, (110 lbs. and over) 75 yards.—1st, Geo. Clark, silver cup; 2nd, Robt. Strange, three tickets; 3rd, H. McKoy, one ticket.

Three-legged race (under 110 lbs.)—1st, Morrison and Morse, two silver medals; 2nd, Williams and Davis, four tickets; 3rd, Vaughan and Taylor, two tickets.

Three-legged race, (110 lbs. and over)—1st, Clark and Strange; two silver medals; 2nd, Smith and Lord, four tickets; 3rd, Boone and Solomon, two tickets.

Potato race (under 110 lbs.) eight potatoes, four feet apart.—1st, Carlyle Sheppard, silver cup; 2nd, Frank Meier, three tickets; 3rd, R. Williams, one ticket.

Potato race (110 lbs. and over) eight potatoes, four feet apart.—1st, C. Smith, silver cup; 2nd, W. Lord, three tickets; 3rd, G. Bornemann, one ticket.

22-yard dash, (Open to all)—1st, Harry Solomon, silver cup; 2nd, G. Clark, three tickets; 3rd, Templeton, Charlotte, N. C., one ticket.

The events were concluded by noon. The running broad jump was a new event and attracted much interest. It proved so successful that it will doubtless be a regular event hereafter. The races of Carolina Yacht Club were held beginning at 2:30 o'clock and continuing until 3:30 and were witnessed by the crowds at Lumina. Mr. Skelding secured a fine photograph of the vast throng as the people were witnessing the yacht races, as well as getting several new views from the ocean side of Lumina.

The most thrilling and exciting of the afternoon events at Lumina was the canoe race, one-quarter of a mile out through the surf, and one-quarter of a mile back, two men to each canoe. This event was witnessed by the largest crowd of the day and was one of the features of the day. The winners were: First prize; two silver cups, Lord and Strange; second, four tickets, Corbett and Clark; third, two tickets, Calder and Bridgers. This was followed by the swimming race, one-eighth of a mile out through the surf and one-eighth of a mile back, which also stirred much enthusiasm. The winners were: First prize, B. R. Dunn, silver cup; second, Henry McKoy, three tickets; third, H. deW. Rapalje, one ticket.

Yacht Races Splendid.

The grand prize regatta for all classes of boats was held in the afternoon by the Carolina Yacht Club and the thousands of visitors on the beach witnessed the race, which was unusually fast and at times exciting and thrilling. There was a stiff breeze from the east. Three prizes were offered, three silver dishes, and the club flag. Capt. E. A. Metts won the race in an hour and 20 minutes and he gets one of the prizes and the club flag; the second prize, a silver dish, goes to Capt. W. M. Peck, who sailed "Dixie," time 1:20:20, and the third to Capt. O. A. Wiggins, sailing "John Julian," time 1:23:45.

Other boats in the race and their time are given as follows: No. 65, sailed by Capt. P. W. Davis, 1:25:18; fourth place; No. 66, Capt. J. S. Brown, time 1:26:50, fifth; "Raider," Capt. H. J. MacMillan, 1:28:52, sixth; "Elbee", Capt. Meares Harriss, 1:29:55; seventh; No. 69, Capt. R. G. Rankin, Jr., 1:30:10, eighth; No. 67, Capt. A. S. Williams, 1:30:53, ninth; No. 74, Capt. Jas. Stevenson, tenth.

The race was over the beautiful course of the club and there was much enthusiasm among the large number of spectators. The judges of the race were Messrs. J. T. Munds, R. L. Cobb and T. E. Brown. The third race of the season will be sailed over the course of the club Saturday afternoon. This race will be open only to Class A boats.

CONFERENCE BEGINS TODAY

Annual Meeting of the Wilmington District, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Opens Today at Southport.

In the Methodist Church at Southport the annual conference of the Wilmington District, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held this week, beginning tonight with an opening sermon by Rev. M. A. Smith, of Trenton. The conference will be presided over by Bishop John C. Kilgo, of Durham, who has been in Wilmington for the past two days prior to going to Southport. The conference will be in daily session, with services each night, until Sunday night, when the closing sermon will be preached.

The reports of the different pastors in the Wilmington district will be heard and indications point to reports of a most gratifying growth along all lines of church work during the past year. The local mission field will also come in for its share of attention and plans will be formulated for enlarging the work during the coming church year. There are between 20 and 25 churches in the Wilmington district.

Representations from the various connectional bodies, such as Church publications, educational institutions, etc., will be heard, and plans will also be discussed looking to the enlargement of the scope of these bodies.

In addition to the business session and the devotional services there will be the usual exchange of suggestions and experiences which always proves so helpful to the assembled ministers and laymen.

Bishop Kilgo and the Wilmington ministers, and also the ministers from other towns and cities who have to pass through this city in order to reach Southport, will leave for that place on the steamer Wilmington at 2:30 this afternoon, the boat making a special trip for the convenience of the clergymen.

It is expected that the forthcoming conference will prove one of the most interesting and instructive, as well as one of the most successful in the showings made for a year, in the history of the organization.

WATER PURIFIER INSTALLED

Step Taken to Destroy Probable Pollution in City Water Supply — Legal Department to Enforce Sanitary Laws.

The latest move in the city health campaign is the addition of an apparatus to purify the water in the local mains. This purifier, which was installed Monday night at the city waterworks' plant, automatically distributes solution of hypo chloride of lime in measured quantities, into the outflow of water into the mains. This solution purifies the water and destroys pollution, without rendering the liquid distasteful or in any way disagreeable to use. It does not discolor the water and it is tasteless.

The assistant to the secretary of the State Board of Health, Mr. Boolsor, a civil engineer, who has been investigating the sanitary conditions in Wilmington for the past month or so, installed the purifier and he expects to have absolute bacterological evidence of the efficacy of the new pre- measure within a week or ten days. This work is in line with that which is being done and the methods that are being pursued by the city health department in its campaign for a healthier and cleaner city. Several other important changes are in contemplation by the health department officials which will greatly improve conditions and make for absolute sanitation and cleanliness.

Three physicians were out yesterday all day collecting data as to the preventable diseases now prevalent in the city. This work is supplementary to that started by the city health department last week. It is being done with a view of reaching a definite conclusion as to all the different possible sources of disease now existing in the city. There are so many possible sources of infection that the measures taken to dispose of unsanitary premises, surface closets, horse and cow stables, imperfect water supply and fly contamination of food are considered imperative by the city health department and the work will be pushed as vigorously as possible.

These measures are in a direct line with controlling the present health situation. The condemnation of unsanitary premises, surface closets, tenements, horse and cow stables, etc., has been turned over to the legal department of the city and active prosecutions will be begun today against offenders. All infractions of Section 13 of the amended North Carolina Health Law and of Sections 10 and 11 of the city ordinances applying to unsanitary premises, including vacant lots, will be prosecuted as soon as possible after the detection of the offense and the offender. The public has been warned through the public press and otherwise of the intention of the health department in this matter, and the law will now be rigidly enforced, it is said.

GRIP OF ACUTE HEAT WAVE.

Spread Over Country Yesterday—The "Safe and Sane" Fourth.

Washington, July 4.—As if to protest on behalf of young America against the wave of the "safety and sanity," making for greater physical comfort which has characterized the celebration of the National birthday, the elements today held the greater portion of the country in the grip of the most acute heat wave of the year. Of the 84 observation stations of the weather bureau, in this country, 22 recorded official maximum temperatures of 100 degrees or more, while a considerable majority showed over 90 degrees.

The greatest heat area was in the Middle and Central Western States. The South was relatively cool and except that most of the territory along the borders of the northern-most of the Great Lakes were also cool, it would almost have seemed as if the points of the compass had reversed themselves for the day. The Pacific coast was also a notable exception, that part of the country enjoying pleasant weather.

The greatest heat recorded was 104 degrees in the weather observatories which in numerous instances meant a temperature of almost 110 degrees at street level. Eight cities, Albany, Boston, Charles City, Des Moines, Kansas City, Omaha, Sioux City and Indianapolis reached this maximum of 104 degrees.

Fourth of July heat records were broken in a number of cities, these including Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Cincinnati, and a number of other towns.

Fatalities resulting from the heat were numerous, especially in the large cities, and the gayety of the Nation's natal day was decidedly sobered by the rigors of the atmosphere.

In the great farming sections of the West crops suffered damage. Continued drought in Kansas, together with the stifling heat, which has recently prevailed, has worked great damage to all of the grain crops, the oats crop being reported as virtually ruined. Hay crops, likewise, are almost a total loss, while the fruit crop will not average more than half its usual yield.

Hundreds of deaths are reported from the cities and the number of heat prostrations will run well into the thousands. The Summer resorts in the neighborhood of these cities profited largely from the weather, hundreds of thousands being induced to leave the sweltering towns by the combination of a holiday and the weather condition.

No immediate relief appears in sight, although in some sections there probably will be a slight alleviation from existing conditions.

YOUNG MEN, BEGIN.

Begin to build a standing against the day when you may embark in business for yourself.

Marshall Field, as a clerk, carried a checking account and paid even his board by check.

When he bought an interest in the Leiter store, he had become so well known to the officers of the then largest bank in Chicago that he was able to borrow what he lacked to complete the deal. When Mr. Field died he owned a controlling interest in that bank. Begin today.

BUILDERS' CONVENTION ENDS

Was Most Largely Attended Meeting in the History of the Exchange Mr. Frank P. Milburn Delivers Address.

With the address of Mr. Frank P Milburn, of Washington, D. C., one of the most prominent architects in the South, featuring the occasion, the North Carolina Builders' Exchange held the closing session of its semi-annual convention yesterday morning in the ball room of the Oceanic Hotel, Wrightsville Beach. The convention was probably the most largely attended in the history of the organization, about 60 of the 65 members being present, along with a number of salesmen and representatives of different firms that handle building materials and supplies, making the total attendance something over 100.

The session convened at 10:30 o'clock. Mr. Milburn addressed the body at some length, speaking on the relations that should exist between the contractors, the architects and the owner. He discussed this phase as a personal relation and advocated co-operation instead of the slight differences that sometime exist under certain conditions and mar the efforts of each for perfect work. Mr. Milburn went into the details of his subject and covered different points very carefully. His talk was of great value to the assembled builders and contractors and was listened to with the closest attention. He closed by quoting several verses of a very appropriate poem touching on the Old North State and when he sat down he was cheered to the echo. Mr. Milburn is something of a Tar Heel himself, having spent a number of years in Charlotte, in the practice of his profession, and he has hundreds of friends in the State. He will be in Wilmington for a number of days, as he is engaged with some work here.

The proposed consolidation of the North and South Carolina Builders' Exchanges was discussed and the matter is favored by both organizations. It was decided to hold a meeting some time during October to determine upon the advisibility of forming an Inter-State Exchange. In the meantime, the president, Mr. J. A. Jones, of Charlotte, and the secretary, Mr. E. P. Tingley, of Charlotte, will go to Baltimore, where they will investigate the Inter-State Builders' Exchange of Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, with a view of finding out just what advantages the consolidation affords. A delegation from the South Carolina Exchange attended the convention and they were heartily in favor of the proposed Inter-State organization.

Raleigh was chosen as the place for the holding of the Winter meeting, which will be held some time during January. A telegram was received from the Merchants' Association of Raleigh, shortly after the Capital City had been chosen, reading as follows: "Merchants' Association of Raleigh is looking forward to your next convention. J. B. Pearce, President."

The convention adjourned at 12 M., and the members came to Wilmington, where they were the guests of the Elks' Club for the remainder of the day.

While no action was taken upon the matter, it is understood that the Exchange is considering holding its Summer meeting at Wrightsville Beach every year. The delegates had such a nice time at the popular Oceanic Hotel that they are considerably impressed with the advantages of Wrightsville as a convention center.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DEW.

Laid to Rest in Bellevue Cemetery Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan A. Dew, wife of Mr. J. H. Dew, of the city police force, who passed away at the family residence Monday after a long illness, was held from Bladen Street Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. W. L. Rexford, the pastor, assisted by Rev. C. F. Whitlock, pastor of Brooklyn Baptist church. There was also a special song service by the choir. Mrs. Dew had been a faithful member of Bladen Street church since its organization and she had many friends in the city. She was loved and admired by all who knew her for her high Christian character and noble disposition. The funeral was attended by many friends and acquaintances, and a number of beautiful floral designs attested the regard in which she was held. Interment was made in Bellevue cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. J. S. Seiter, S. O. Frinck, C. W. Woodard, P. A. Bounds, L. J. Cox and E. S. Hanck.

NEGRO YOUTH DROWNED.

Thomas Wilson Lost Life in Cape Fear River Yesterday Afternoon.

Thomas Wilson, colored, the nine-year-old son of Amy Wilson, who lives on Cowan, near Third street, was drowned in the Cape Fear river between A and B warehouses of the Seaboard Air Line yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, and the body was recovered a short time later by a negro by the name of Richardson, who dived for it. The lad was on the wharf with a number of young companions and it is said that they were arranging to go in bathing in the river. It is thought that the boy either lost his balance and fell into the river or was pushed into the stream by one of his thoughtless companions.

Greensboro, N. C., July 4.—The coroner's jury yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict in which they say Mrs. Ida Hill came to her death by burglars at Jamestown a few weeks ago. There is still no clew as to the guilty parties, and despite the coroner's jury's findings the majority of people believe it was suicide.

ARCHITECTS OF THE STATE

Annual Convention Held at Seashore Hotel Monday and Tuesday—Next Meeting in Winston-Salem—Luncheon.

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Architects' Association was held at the Seashore Hotel, Wrightsville Beach, Monday and yesterday with a fairly large attendance of the members from various parts of the State. It was a very pleasant and profitable session, and although adjournment was taken yesterday morning some of the architects are still on the beach and will not return to their homes before the latter part of the week.

The first session of the convention was held Monday morning and the second and final one yesterday morning. There were a number of short talks of interest to the architects and some business transacted. Mr. Joseph F. Leitner, one of the leading architects of the South, welcomed the visitors in a characteristically happy speech. In the absence of the president, Mr. Frank K. Thompson, of Raleigh, the convention was presided over by Mr. Hill C. Linthicum, of Durham, who was vice president. The organization selected Winston-Salem as the next place of meeting and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President—Hill C. Linthicum, Durham.

Vice President—W. G. Rogers, Charlotte.

Secretary and Treasurer—Franklin Gordon, Charlotte.

Mr. W. J. Wilkins, of Florence, S. C., and Mr. W. C. Northrop, of Winston-Salem, were elected members of the board of directors.

Following the closing session yesterday morning the visitors were charmingly entertained at luncheon at the Elks' Temple in this city by Mr. J. F. Leitner, who was for two terms president of the organization, and who is one of its most popular members. The luncheon was greatly enjoyed and Mr. Leitner was given a vote of thanks for his generous hospitality. Besides, he was presented with a handsome cut glass wine set traced with silver bands in appreciation of his successful efforts in making the sojourn of the visitors pleasant in every sense of tae word. The speech of presentation was made by Mr. Chas. C. Hook, of Charlotte. This was the crowning event of the stay of the visitors in this city. Several of the visitors returned to the beach and will spend several days longer at the Seashore.

MONEY FOR MONUMENT.

Veterans of Robeson Aid Immortal Six Hundred Fund.

Several weeks ago a movement was started to raise funds for the purpose of erecting a monument to the dead and living Confederate Soldiers who are known as the "Immortal Six Hundred"—Confederate officers and prisoners of war who were confined in the stockade on Morris Island under fire of the guns of the Confederate forces shelling that island, and many of whom were subsequently starved on unwholesome food at Fort Pulaski, Georgia, and Hilton Head, South Carolina.

Veterans are showing much interest in the movement and The Star acknowledges receipt of a check for $29.50 from Dr. Hamilton McMillan, of Red Springs, subscriptions being received by The Star for the monument fund. In his letter Dr. McMillan says that the above amount was raised at Wakulla, Robeson county, among old veterans who participated in the annual celebration of the Battle of Bethel.

Dr. McMillan, in writing of the reunion says: "This reunion is held every year at the residence of W. J. McDonald on the 10th of June but was postponed this year until the 29th in hope that Col. J. B. Starr would be able to attend.

"Mr. and Mrs. McDonald give a princely entertainment every year to the old vets who sincerely appreciate their patriotic efforts to render the old soldiers happy in their declining years. The day was spent in viewing the magnificent farm, with the vineyards, orchards, fish ponds and improved stock. We noted 800 pecan trees growing finely, engrafted on hickory trees. Bee culture receives much attention and the income from shipments of honey to various states would surprise the readers of The Star.

"For the elegant repast and entertainment a vote of thanks was tendered and the hope expressed that the lives of our kind host and hostess may be long in the land and that they may continue to be blest with health and peace and sweet content."

The following is a list of those who contributed to the monument fund: J. C. Everett, of Maxton, $1; W. E. Brock, of Fayetteville, $1; J. D. McArthur, of Robeson, $1; H. McMillan, of Red Springs, $1; J. G. Whitlock, of Maxton, $1; A. B. Williamson, of Parkton, $1; J. F. McKoy, of Red Springs, $1; Dr. J. D. Croom, of Maxton, $1; J. J. Crosswell, of Fayetteville, $1; E. E. Gorham, of Fayetteville, $1; Joseph G. Brown, of Red Springs, $1; J. F. Campbell, J. M. McRae, John K. McGirt, W. G. McLean, B. F. McLean and J. W. Carter, all of Maxton, $1 each; James Kirkpatrick, Randolph McMillan and Sheriff Hector McGeachy, all of Fayetteville, $1 each; cash, fifty cents.

Where French Market Coffee Won Its Fame

Over 150 years ago the old French Market at New Orleans won fame through its exquisite coffee. It was a rare treat to stop at this celebrated market and sip of the delicious beverage—the only place in America where it could be secured.

The society dames of all the Mardi Gras Balls would not consider the event complete without a cup of French Market Coffee as a "nightcap."

In the War of 1812, after Andrew Jackson's brilliant victory, he stopped at the Market House and treated his troops to French Market Coffee.

Then it could be had nowhere else. But today you may all serve it at your table—for the old French Market blend is perpetuated by

At the Bijour Today.

Yesterday was a big gala occasion at the Bijou. Immense holiday crowds greatly enjoyed the day, and were lavish in praise of the special Fourth of July bill offered, at large expense, by the clever, enterprising Bijou management. The programme was superbly fitting to the event and hence was especially enjoyable. It was a rare treat and the large audience were duly appreciative. So verily it was a Glorious Fourth at the ever-popular Bijou.

Today will not find any let-up, however, in the good things offered at the Bijou. Today's bill is going to be one of the best ever, making another strong bid for the patronage of amusement lovers and which patronage, in large chunks, it is very apt to get, too.

At the very top of today's bill will be found one of the greatest comedy films of years: "Foxy Izzy" is a constant howl of laughter. The star character is a shrewd peddler who, while on the road, is held up and robbed by two tramps. The manner in which he gets the best of the hoboes is most ingenious, as well as a scream.

"His Birthday" is also on the delicious menu. It teaches a wholesome lesson, showing how unduly the suspicions of a husband are aroused, the agony he suffers in consequence, and the happy ending.

Yet another great motion picture-drama, one of thrills, is "A Cattle Herder's Romance." This picture is rich in that rugged Western courage that one likes to behold and admire. The setting for the picture is exceedingly beautiful, presenting spectacles of massive rocks, giant trees and pretty woodlands.

The music for today is going to be of a delightful nature. Everything in the music line will be new, and every feature a bright gem. Of course, as is proverbial, the Bijou will be a place of solid comfort, with its strong breezes, from many electric fans, and its free ventilation.

KING REVIEWS SCOUTS.

Sees 35,000 Boys Gathered at Windsor from All Parts of Kingdom

Windsor, England, July 4.—King George accompanied by Queen Mary and surrounded by a brilliant staff of distinguished officers of the navy, and with other members of the Royal family, reviewed in Windsor great park today an army of 35,000 boy scouts gathered from all parts of the United Kingdom and from some of the colonies. The weather was beautiful.

Drawn up in a huge semi-circle in front of the Royal enclosure, the boys dressed in the universally adopted scouts uniform of blue, khaki or gray with flat brimmed khaki hats and brilliant neckerchiefs of various hues, formed a picturesque parade.

They were formed in eight divisions, the place of honor being occupied by 2,000 King's scouts, who were selected from the various troops as the most efficient, and made a guard of honor for the King. Just behind these were posted 120 life savers, all of whom have been decorated for life-saving.

As his majesty came into the parade ground the band of one of the guards struck up the National anthem and the scouts stood at the salute with their staves, while they sang the first verse of "God Save the King."

Then the King rode along the lines closely and inspecting the boys.

Lieutenant General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the chief scout, was in command and at his order the patrols of the selected King's scouts gave an exhibition of firing lightning and ambulance work. After this, when the King had taken up his position opposite the center of the semi-circle, there was a wild scene as the entire army of boys at the sound of the "Scouts Call," charged at full speed towards him, each of the patrols shouting its own peculiar call as it advanced. Then the "Alert" sounded and like clock work, they all stood still and silent for a moment to enable them to recover their breath, after which they sang in wonderful unison two of their most popular scouts choruses.

The King then expressed his gratification at the success of the movement to its originator, Gen. Baden Powell.

THE HOT WAVE CONTINUES.

New Records Were Established—Fearful in Chicago.

Washington, July 4.—The hot wave continues throughout the country. New records were established today, and no promise of relief was held out by the weather bureau tonight. The country from the Atlantic to the Pacific faces another day of torrid heat tomorrow without promise of showers or even of cloud to shield it.

Today temperatures were near or above the hundred mark. While slight drops were noted in some cities, increases in others served to maintain the average at the topnotch. Yuma, Ariz., reported 110 degrees, this being the record for the day. Next stood St. Joseph, Mo., 106 degrees.

Boston, which beat all its former records with 102 yesterday, added two more degrees today and led the East with 104. In Washington 97 was the record for the day. Down town thermometers soared to 107.

Moderate temperature prevailed in the South Atlantic and Gulf States with local showers.

Chicago, July 4.—Today was the hottest day, with two exceptions, in the history of the local weather bureau, the thermometer at 5 P. M. indicating 101.5 degrees. The exceptions were in July, 1901, when a mark of 102 degrees was followed the next day by one of 103 degrees.

No one who could get out remained in the city. Railroads leading to Summer resorts ran special trains, which were crowded and lake boats were jammed to the legal limit. The parks were filled with exhausted humanity and thousands fled from the heat into the waters of the lake.

Dwellers in the tenement districts tonight slept on roofs, sidewalks and alley ways. Every street stair way was occupied with the adults stripped to the limit of seemliness, and all but naked babies wailing or silent from illness. Those who sought a breeze in street car riding found that every breath of wind was like a puff from a bake open in full operation. Electric fans buzzed among the well-to-do but merely propelled hot air.

BISHOP J. C. KILGO PREACHES

Distinguished Prelate Delivers Masterful Sermon in Grace Methodist Church—Fair Sized Congregation.

Taking for his text the 13th and 14th verses of the fifth chapter of the Book of St. Matthews and basing his sermon on the remarks of the Savior in His sermon to the multitude: "Ye are the Salt of Earth  Ye are the Light of the World," Bishop John C. Kilgo, of Durham, former president of Trinity College, delivered a masterful discourse to a fair congregation at Grace Methodist church last night.

Bishop Kilgo opened his sermon by telling of a series of articles which recently appeared in a certain fashion publication. The articles, written in the first person, dealt with "Why I am not a member of any church." The writer claimed that the church was not progressive and that it was too conservative. Bishop Kilgo stated that he would concede to this publication a very pronounced authority in such matters as to what sort of gloves a young lady should wear at a certain hour in the day and what shade or color of dress was the more appropriate at another hour. He also granted that the magazine was the last word in matters pertaining to the architectural structure of womans' hats, but when it came to theological questions it was an insufferable failure. He also cited the action of another well-known womans' publication in sending a woman throughout the different States, for the purpose of testing the hospitality of the Church. He declared that the woman was under instructions to efface herself as much as possible in the various churches and to make no effort to encourage friendliness and hospitality. She visited the churches, sitting in distant corners and hurrying out as soon as the service was over, and then wrote a long series of articles, for which she was well paid, telling of the inhospitality of the various churches she had visited to strangers like herself. The Bishop declared that the publication was all right as an advertising medium for popular brands of talcum powder and other articles dear to the feminine heart, but in taking up a matter of this kind it had gotten woefully beyond its depth.

The Bishop declared that the conservative element was the backbone of the Church and the nation as well. It was this conservative element that had brought down to posterity the priceless relics and treasures of literature and art and history from the earlier ages, and he avered that had this work been left to politicians or students the relics would either have never lasted throughout the ages, or they would have been revised and changed so much and so often that they would be entirely worthless, and unrecognizable.

Yet some, declared the Bishop, argued that this was the 20th century and that in so intellectual an age it was time for the Church to shake off the old conservative methods and catch up with the times. The Bishop denied that this was an intellectual age, and declared that instead it was an age of "shallow-mindedness and doubt." He argued that an age that could boast of not one real masterpiece of art, or one great poem or other literary work of note, could lay no claims to intellectuality. He declared that the people now could not see any art except in pictures that appeal to sensualism, and that the public had forsaken the great literary masters of the past for such books as "The One Woman," "Ships that Pass in the Night," "Trilby," "Pigs is Pigs," and others of like calibre.

Bishop Kilgo stated that it is often claimed that the preacher is not intellectual enough for his work, but that this was not the case for the preacher often had to lower his pulpit to the level of the congregation and make of it only a machine for the manufacture of a pre-digested intellectual food.

In closing Bishop Kilgo touched briefly on the fact that all true intellectual accomplishments are fostered in the Church and that the Church is also foremost in financial affairs, as well as in educational work. He stated that practically all the leading business men of the city were churchmen, and that an investigation of the bank books would prove the statement. He also told how the Church had been the prime factor in the great educational fight until the battle was won. He cited an instance in his own town, when he had requested the teachers in the graded schools to question the pupils as to what church affiliations they had. Out of 3,000 children the experiment revealed only four who were entirely without church affiliations.

The Bishop closed his sermon with a most eloquent appeal to all to join the true aristocracy, that of the Church, and become one of that great conservative element that is the "salt of the earth and the light of the world."

Bishop Kilgo was in the city on his way to Southport, where he will attend and preside at the meeting of the Wilmington District Conference. While here he was delightfully entertained by Rev. J. C. Wooten, pastor of Grace church, and yesterday morning was taken for a trip to Wrightsville Sound in an automobile. He has many friends in Wilmington who were glad to greet him on this visit.

ort Smith, Ark., July 4.—According to a report received here tonight, the business section of the town of Braggs, Oklahoma, 58 miles west of here, was almost entirely wiped out by fire today. Among the buildings destroyed were a half dozen stores and the post office. The town's telegraphic and telephone communication is so crippled that it is impossible to get accurate reports.

Reading, Penn., July 4. — Twenty-six persons were injured, two of them seriously, by the collapse of the small grand stand at the Reading Tri-State Baseball Park today. Herman J. Folkman, a well known merchant, had his back broken and will probably die. Mrs. A. J. Fisher had her spine injured and was hurt internally. Slight hopes are entertained for her recovery. District Attorney Schaffer sustained slight internal injuries.

THE EXCLUSION OF COWS.

Will It Abate the Fly Nuisance in Wilmington?

Editor Morning Star:

Our present Board of Health has drafted and is about to put in force an ordinance which on its face purports to regulate the keeping of cows within the city limits, but if noted carefully you will observe that it is a cunningly devised ordinance to exclude and not to regulate.

I, together with many others, can see no good or sufficient reason why our health department should use such drastic measures against cows when horses are just as bad and some experts say much worse, yet according to the ordinance one may keep as many horses as he likes in the back room of his residence while we are limited to one cow and she must be forever up in a stable—on a cement floor—fifty feet from any residence.

It is commonly known that neither the horse or cow are subject to the diseases now prevalent in our city. It is also known that during the yellow fever epidemic here that those laboring among horses and cattle escaped the fever. We can furnish the names of the gentlemen who made these observations if necessary. It is also a fact that vaccination was discovered through the milking of cows. The virus used for diphtheria is obtained from the horse. Now, if these medicinal proprieties are contained in these animals is it unreasonable to believe that we are benefitted by coming in contact with these animals I say no! for I have been vaccinated three times since I began milking cows and it has failed to take on me every time. You will find that people who are in contact with horses and cows daily are generally very healthy, in fact, I know some that have gone into the business for their health and are robust men today. The stables and lots where these animals are kept are not unhealthy. Having lived with nine other members of my family within thirty feet of one for twenty-six years and never having had a case of typhoid fever, smallpox or other malignant disease, I feel qualified to make this statement. Therefore, the physicians and citizens of Wilmington should protest against this ordinance taking effect as it will debar all concerned from procuring milk from private cows for their infants and sick ones.

It will also throw the entire milk business into the hands of the big dairies and give them the opportunity if they see fit to raise the price of milk.

Why does not the health department seek to regulate the keeping of cows and not their extermination. The only benefit I can see is that if all the small dairies are discontinued then all the milk will be deposited in one depot and can be inspected by our new health department and the city can do away with the expense of the milk inspector.

Now, if the keeping of horses can be regulated so can that of the cows. There is no more necessity for a cow stable being 50 feet from a dwelling than there is for a horse stable and the same bin that is adequate for the compost of one animal is equally so for the other.

The health department will tell you that they are waging war against the flies. Now, will some one kindly tell us how we are to discern the difference in the number of flies when you take 300 cows out and leave 3,000 horses in the city? It is a means to an end? It appears to be a direct discrimination against citizens keeping cows.

We are all heartily in favor of a cleaner city and are ready and willing to lend a hand but lets use some discretion and not deprive our babies and sick folks of good, wholesome food products for fear some one else may get sick and that, too, in a way that none of the present trouble has been traced to. I have been told by some of our most prominent physicians that in their opinion none of our sickness at present was due to the presence of horses and cows in the city.

The State chemist has pronounced our water supply polluted and our milk inspector issued a circular stating that it was unfit to wash milk utensils with unless boiled; we have been also informed that Macomber's ditch was highly infected but not one thing has been said about closing up this open sepulcher of disease or giving us pure water.

Is it fair or just to lay the whole burden on our cows?

STORM FULLY CURES WOMAN.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Reading, Pa., July—During a terrific electrical storm which swept over this region last week, Mrs. Mary R. Wentzell, who had been a paralytic for three years, found herself able to move her arm. Later she was able to stand and today, for the first time in months she walked to church. Her strange cure was announced from the pulpit at this morning's service by the Rev. A. R. Yost, whose statement answered the question of the lips of many persons who could not understand how Mrs. Wentzell came to be in her long vacant pew.

Mrs. Wentzell's cure is attributed by the minister to prayer. Members of the congregation, he said, had always remembered the woman's affliction when asking for Divine mercy. Mrs. Wentzell was in bed during the storm. The lightning played around her home almost continuously. Finding herself able to move she cried out. Her family helped her to her feet and gradually her muscles strengthened and she was able to walk.

New York, July 4.—The cumulative effects of three days of the hottest weather this city has experienced in years manifested itself today in a list of twenty-six deaths attributed to the heat. Prostrations were counted by the score and fourteen drownings were reported.

Young Mothers

No young woman, in the joy of coming motherhood, should neglect to prepare her system for the physical ordeal she is to undergo. The health of both she and her coming child depends largely upon the care she bestows upon herself during the waiting months. Mother's Friend prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. It works with and for nature, and by gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, involved, and keeping the breasts in good condition, brings the woman to the crisis in splendid physical condition. The baby too is more apt to be perfect and strong where the mother has thus prepared herself for nature's supreme function. No better advice could be given a young expectant mother than that she use Mother's Friend; it is a medicine that has proven its value in thousands of cases. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

GREAT CENTRAL HIGHWAY.

Route Mapped Out by Dr. Pratt—Will Sell Maps.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 4.—State Geologist Joseph Hyde Pratt, who is co-operating with Chairman Varner, of the board of trustees of the Central Highway, was in Raleigh today and presented his report on the location of the section of the Central Highway from Raleigh to the Tennessee line, giving the details of the conditions that are to be met with in the construction of this section of the great highway that is to stretch from Morehead and Beaufort the whole length of the State to the Tennessee line.

From Raleigh to Durham he adopts the route via Cary and Morrisville, as against the Leesville and East Durham route. From Durham to Graham he adopts the route by way of Hillsboro and Mebane rather than the route by Chapel Hill, but suggests that if the Chapel Hill route is put in shape it can be readily be included on the map and tourists can use either route. From Graham to Greensboro the run will be by way of Elon College and Gibsonville. The run from Greensboro to Salisbury is to be via High Point, Thomasville, Lexington and Spencer. The road thence to Morganton is to be by Newton and Hickory and Connelly Springs. Then the run is to be by Glen-Alpine and Bridgewater and Nebo and on to Old Fort. Thence the run to Asheville is to be by way of Black Mountain and the Swannanoa Valley road through Buncombe county, while from Asheville to the Tennessee line is to be through Haywood county until the Madison county roads can be gotten in shape, which will take a year at least. However, Dr. Pratt believes that the Central Highway he has mapped out will be in such shape that tourists can readily make the run all the way from the seashore to the Tennessee line by October of this year.

This report was submitted to the Central Highway meeting held here at which there were enthusiastic speeches by a number of people and resolutions were adopted calling on the Wake commissioners to take steps at once to do Wake's full part in the road building. Dr. Pratt reported that he has secured the services of three government engineers for work in laying out the highway route and that if the plan ti issue $5 certificates to persons desiring maps of the road carries and something like $12,000 is raised for the preliminary expense, the road work will be underway with a well defined survey for guidance very soon now.

MOTHER OF J. O. CARR DEAD.

Died Suddenly Yesterday Morning at Home in Duplin.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Magnolia, N. C., July 4.—Our community was shocked and pained this morning to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. M. S. Carr, living about five miles from Magnolia. She retired last night in her usual health. About four this morning a slight noise from her room awakened the family, but when they reached her bedside she had passed into the "Great Beyond." She had heart trouble.

Mrs. Carr was the mother of Mr. J O. Carr, of Wilmington, who, being in attendance upon court at Kenansville, was spending the night at his old home. She also leaves three other sons, Messrs. R. D., J. H. and H. G. Carr, who lived with her on the farm. Also one daughter, Miss Mary Carr. She was a sweet spirited Christian woman and leaves a wide circle of relatives and friends to mourn her death.

signers of the Declaration of Independence, on behalf of North Carolina, and if I possessed a shred of the oratorical gifts attributed to him by John Adams, who was himself the Hercules of debate in Carpenter's Hall, I would approach the duty with greater confidence than now inspires me. But I did not inherit in any degree his gift of the silver tongue.

"In his diary, John Adams, discussing the different qualities as debaters of the delegates in that first Congress, says: 'Lee, Patrick Henry and Hooper are the orators,' and this classification of Hooper by so great an authority finds corroboration in the uniform tradition concerning him in North Carolina. He graduated at Harvard in 1760, and the next year entered the office of the celebrated James Otis, as a law student. The association thus formed and especially the overwhelming impression produced upon him by the tremendous speech of Otis in that year which thrilled the Colonies, shaped Hooper's career. His father was a strong loyalist, but the son, realizing that a political day of judgment was righteously at hand, and seeing a more promising prospect for himself in another and distant province, removed his home to North Carolina and spent his life there.

"I do not intend to attempt a biographical sketch of him. That has been done more than once, but never so well done as by that accomplished North Carolina scholar and gentleman, Edwin A. Alderman, now president of the University of Virginia.

In his splendid oration delivered on the Guilford Battle Ground, July 4, 1894, at the inauguration of a monument to Hooper, with a wealth of accurate historical data of the Revolutionary period, (much of which was new and most interesting) and with charming sidelights on characters and events, he presented the only full length portrait of Hooper that has ever been painted. Hooper's remarkable physical comeliness, amounting almost to actual beauty, (another instance in which the law of heredity failed his present representative) his delightful social genius, his foreseeing statesmanship which caused the orator to name him 'The Prophet of American Independence,' his faithful and brilliant service to his people from the beginning to the end of the struggle, his career as a leader of the bar—and his charming domestic life were portrayed in the most attractive way. Nor did the speaker forget to refute by the most complete and crushing documentary evidence, the post-mortuary slander of Mr. Jefferson in 1813 in his letter to John Adams in which he said 'there was no greater Tory in Congress than William Hooper'—a melancholy testimony of the virulence of party spirit at the time, even among the greatest leaders of the people.

"This accusation assumes a ludicrous aspect in view of the fact that while Washington said: 'When I first took command of the army (July 3rd, 1775,) I abhorred the idea of independence,' and while Jefferson himself said: 'Before April 19, 1775, I had never heard a whisper of a disposition to separate from the Mother Country,' yet on April 26th, 1774, a year prior to that time, Hooper in a letter to James Iredell (afterwards a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States) said: 'They (the Colonies) are striding fast to independence, and ere long will build an empire upon the ruins of Great Britain, will adopt its Constitution, purged of its impurities, and from an experience of its defects will guard against these evils which have wasted its vigor.'—a letter which has been pronounced 'the most noteworthy personal letter of the Revolution.' It antedates all known expressions on the subject of separation, and confers upon William Hooper the proud title of the 'Prophet of American Independence.' And this was only one of the many of like character, written by Hooper to his friends. But I will dwell no longer upon his personal career, and only refer to a few events of that period in the history of North Carolina with which he was connected.

"'On the 21st of July, 1774, there was a meeting in Wilmington, N. C., of delegates from the district to demand a convention of the province, and to pronounce the cause of Boston the cause of all. Hooper presided. Commenting on the proceedings of that meeting a writer has said:

"'George William Curtis declared that the people of Pittsfield, Mass., a poor town, of nine hundred inhabitants, were afire with patriotism because they sent their suffering brothers in Boston six pounds, twelve shillings.' How may we guage the patriotic ferver of the little village of Wilmington, North Carolina, six hundred miles away, containing only six hundred inhabitants, sending two shiploads of provisions and 2,000 pounds in currency?

One month after the Wilmington, (N. C.) meeting, the convention demanded by them assembled in Newbern with seventy delegates, and, as is well established, this convention, was 'the first representative assembly independent and defiant of royal authority, that ever assembled in North America.'

"Thence forward the work went on, culminating in the battle of Moore's Creek Bridge, February 27th, 1776, where the first overwhelming victory of the Revolution was won, but the news of which had not yet reached some parts of the country. Mr. Hooper was home in Wilmington, N. C., for some time during Spring of 1776, attending two different conventions that met in North Carolina, one at Hillsborough, the seat of the Provincial Congress, the other at Halifax, North Carolina. The convention at the former place put forth an address to the people of Great Britain. This address was written by Mr. Hooper, and we take occasion here to remark that as early as the 20th of May, 1775, a convention of the Committees of Safety of North Carolina, met at Charlotte Court House, in Mecklenburg county, and by a series of resolutions, declared themselves free and independent of the British crown.

"And here, with apologies to all the scholars, historians, and orators of the country, for venturing these brief remarks, I bring them to a close."

stop him or slow the furious pace, and seemed to be weakening fast.

His seconds worked desperately over him, and he came up in the tenth and eleventh rounds with a burst of speed that fairly smothered Wolgast. Timing every blow to perfection, he whipped in rights and lefts, lading straight lefts, right hooks and swings with a speed and force that slowed the champion for the first time. He fought himself out of close quarters as Wolgast attempted to clinch, and beat the champion to numberless punches in the exchanges.

His effort was but a flash in the pan, however. Wolgast, strong as an ox, came in eagerly for more, in the twelfth, and while Moran continued to land the more often, Wolgast loosened his teeth and started a fresh stream of blood from his mouth and the Englishman went to his corner in distress.

But 33 seconds of the thirteenth round had passed before the rally came that dimmed Moran's hopes of becoming lightweight champion.

In his dressing room, Wolgast said: "It was easy all the way. I would have had the decision if the fight had gone to the end. Moran's claim that I fouled him is foolish. He went down because he could not hold on any longer. I pitted in the stomach five times, all fair, square blows, and then clipped his jaw. That's all there was to it."

The Fight by Rounds.

Round 1.—After shaking hands, they closed in slowly and almost immediately the crowd yelled for the referee to break them apart.

Moran protested that Wolgast was "butting," and the crowd jeered. Wolgast broke a clinch with two powerful lefts to the jaw and they mixed it, each fighting viciously. They went to close quarters with Wolgast hooking his left viciously to the jaw. Then he started the blood from the Briton's mouth with a volley of short arm lefts. A hard body blow by the champion closed the round, which was in Wolgast's favor.

Round 2.—Moran's supporters shouted to him to keep away, but the Englishman rushed in. Wolgast rocked his head with short arm punches and paved the way for a volley of lefts by sending in rights to his stomach. Moran, fighting back gamely, sent Wolgast across the ring with a hard right to the jaw. Wolgast bled from the nostrils as Moran followed his advantage by clipping the champion several times with hard left and right punches to the face and head. Moran's round.

Round 3.—Wolgast covered up, crouching low and missed a terrific left swing intended for the jaw. They roughed it head to head, both scoring frequently while in this position. Wolgast almost floored his man with left swings to the jaw and then closed in, lashing out his left and right. Wolgast sent three lefts in succession to the body and received in return a stiff right to the jow. The round was even.

Round 4.—Wolgast's right eye was badly discolored and Moran's mouth was bleeding as they toed the mark. Moran shot a stiff left to the face and again they rouged it, with their arms locked. Wolgast was doing the greater execution. Moran drove a straight right to the jaw and then clouted the champion with a left to the same place. Wolgast sent his right with great force to the body and they seemed disinclined to break from the clinch. Wolgast hooked a left to the body and drove the Briton against the ropes. They were quickly back in the center of the ring, fighting like tigers. Wolgast's seconds taunted Moran, to which the Briton replied: "He won't get me today," and then protested vigorously to Referee Welsh that the champion was intentionally "elbowing him." Moran had a shade.

Round 5.—They clinched with Wolgast uppercutting to the face with right and left. Moran jarred the champion with a short arm right to the jaw. Wolgast swung wildly and Moran rammed him twice more with rights to the face. A long clinch followed. Wolgast breaking it with a hard right to the face. They danced about the ring and Wolgast landed two to the jaw with short rights. Wolgast seemed the stronger as the bell ended an even round.

Round 6.—The fighters slow up a bit at the outset of the round and then Moran shot a straight left to the face. They went to close range, Wolgast landing several rights over the kidneys. They fought at a hot pace against the ropes, each scoring repeatedly. Then followed a smart long range rally, both landing lefts to the face and both spitting blood, Moran breaking from a clinch, rocked the champion's head with a right hook and the round ended with the men mixing it at a fast clip. The round was about even.

Round 7.—Up to this stage Moran apparently had landed the cleaner punches, but seemed to be the weaker of the two. They at once went into a clinch and a heart breaking rally followed, Moran having much the better of the wicked exchange. Wolgast crowded Moran against the ropes, the Englishman making determined stand. Referee Welsh finally parted them, for the first time. Wolgast steadying himself, ripped uppercut after uppercut to the body with telling effect and Moran reeled across the ring to the ropes. Wolgast shot a left to the jaw that sent Moran against the ropes and the bell ended a round much in favor of the champion.

Round 8.—Moran found Wolgast's face thrice with his left. They clinched and Wolgast drove his right powerfully to the kidneys. Moran almost sent the champion through the ropes with a rush and then went nearly through himself from the force of his onslaught. Wolgast drove a terrible left to the stomach and followed it with right uppercuts to the jaw. Wolgast started the blood in a stream from the Briton's mouth and Moran wilted like a leaf. Moran went to his corner with a bloody face and appeared to be in sore straits. Wolgast had all the better of the round, with Moran tiring.

Round 9.—Wolgast chatted with friends about the ring during the minute's rest. At the gong he rushed to close quarters, sending his right to the kidneys. Moran retaliated with two straight rights to the face and the champion swung wildly. However, he landed several hard rights and lefts to the stomach and the round closed with the fighting going at an awful pace. Wolgast almost sent the Englishman through the ropes with heavy punches but Moran came back gamely and scored frequently on the body. Another rally followed with both fighters apparently suffering from the hurricane pace. Wolgast had the better of the round.

Round 10.—Wolgast forced the issue, but was met with a straight right on the jaw and they slowed up. The champion then swung his left to the jaw and almost sent the Englishman through the ropes with right and left to the body and face. Moran brought the crowd to its feet when he met Wolgast at his own game, beating him to the punch and startig the blood from the champion's mouth.

Wolgast slowed up precipitately and they rested in a clinch. Moran swung a hard right to the jaw and they were in another rally when the bell clanged. It was Moran's round and he was cheered to the echo.

Round 11.—Moran opened with two lefts to the face and escaped a return. They clinched and exchanged rights to the face. Moran, after blocking several rights drove left to the face. Wolgast countered with slashing body punches but Moran did not give way an inch. The Briton swung right and left to the jaw and cleverly escaped the champion's vicious assaults. It was Moran's round and he appeared to be gaining strength.

Round 12.—They clinched, hammering away at each other's body and face. Wolgast sent two right uppercuts to the body. Moran then shot a straight left to the face and another to the nase, Wolgast retaliating with two forceful body blows.

Moran swung his right to the jaw at long range and quickly followed it with a left to the same mark. Wolgast started Moran's mouth bleeding with a hard right just as the bell rang and the Briton spat out a tooth. Even round.

Round 13.—Wolgast rushed desperately and finally forced the Briton into a corner. They had not been fighting 30 seconds when the champion shot his right with terrific force to the pit of the stomach. The impact of the blow was heard clear across the arena. Quick as a flash Wolgast sent two more rights to the stomach and as Moran began to fall, a left hook found the jaw. Moran went to the floor with his mouth open and his eyes glassy. He was counted out while in a recumbent position.
